RED SOX FIGHT FOR FIRST: DOVES ENCOUNTER CUBS

Lake's pennant candidates, the Boston Red Sox, engaged the Chicago White Sox in the second game of the series this afternoon. It looked easy for the Boston crowd.

Only a half game stands between the Red Sox and the top of the ladder.

The Doves faced the terrible Cubs from Chicago, but they had a hunch that the St. Louis crowd had used up the Boston hoodoo.

ATTACKS EDITOR WHO RAN FOR MAYOR.

RICHMOND, Ind., May 20—James Bennet Gordon, editorial manager of the Richmond Item, and candidate for the nomination for Mayor on the Republican ticket recently, was assaulted by Byron Robbins to-day. Gordon is in the hospital. Robbins has not been arrested.

YANKEE JAILED FOR ASSAULT IN MEXICO.

CITY OF MEXICO., May 20—Edward Erner, an American, has been sentenced to 16 months' imprisonment by the First Military Tribunal for assaulting a member of President Diaz's guard.

THREE FIRMS IN STOCK FAILURE

Two Others Follow Sederquist and Barry in Financial Embarrassment.

The failure of Sederquist, Barry & Company, bankers and brokers, of No. 19 Congress street, to-day, followed quickly by the assignment of two smaller firms, caused somewhat of a shock in Boston financial and business circles.

A. B. SEDERQUIST, HEAD OF FAILED BROKERAGE FIRM

The other firms to go under are E. P. Cram & Co. of No. 7 Congress street and Phillips & Fettes of No. 103 Summer street. Both did business through Sederquist, Barry & Co., and ascribed their failures to that of the larger concern.

Although no statement of assets and liabilities was given out at any of the three offices, it is thought in State street that in all about $500,000 is involved.

What makes the failure of Sederquist, Barry & Co. the more serious is the wide field of operations which they covered, they having branch offices in eighteen other cities in New England.

Bankruptcy Proceedings Begin.

This firm assigned to Whipple, Sears & Ogden, its attorneys. Judge Dodge of the United States District Court later appointed Charles F. Weed receiver. He qualified in $10,000 bonds.

Bankruptcy proceedings were begun against the firm by Edward P. Cram of the firm of E. P. Cram & Co., who states that a balance on an open account amounting to $1,064.57 is due him. The other two, who signed the petition, are Frank A. Hince, with an account of $5,065, and Max Jacobs, with an open account of $30. Attached to the papers was a typewritten statement from the firm saying that it was insolvent and was willing to be adjudged bankrupt.

Aged Customer Loses $17,500.

At the office of Phillips & Fettes, the former member of the firm was asked for information. He said he could not give any, as he did not know how he stood. Two sad looking men in the office, who appeared to be patrons, shook their heads when asked how hard they had been hit.

This is the third time these brokers have come to the wall within a year. The first time was when they were with Auerbach & Co. on the dike next when Foley & Co. suspended.

Something like seventy-five checks which were issued by Sederquist, Barry & Company were paid to-day when the banks opened. As the afternoon wore on and the news of the failure sped through Boston and other nearby cities, the office of the firm became crowded with customers. They ranged in feeling from red hot anger to silent dejection. One white-haired man said, with a quiver in his voice:

"I have lost $17,000 by this failure. I got an inkling that things were not as they should be a month ago and should have got out. I don't know what I shall do now."

The books of the concern were examined about a month ago, it was said, and apparently everything was all right then.

Large Force Employed.

The firm occupies the entire fourth floor of the big office building. In the suite of office there were about a dozen clerks, bookkeepers and typewriters at work when an AMERICAN reporter entered shortly after 10 o'clock. Just off this room is a larger one with a blackboard for quotations. In this were probably twenty-five men gathered in little groups discussing the situation. They had been told of the failure.

"This comes as a great shock and a surprise to me," remarked one of the men. "It is a hard blow to me."

That seemed to be the feeling among all of those in the room. When a reporter asked to see a member of the firm, a young man with black hair and sallow complexion came forward. He declined to tell his name.

"I am a member of the firm," he said.

WIFE DIDN'T SUIT HIM, SO HE SHOT HER

In a jealous rage, Giacinto Pelosi early to-day shot and killed his young bride at their home in Foster place, North End. He left a note telling the police and his friends why he committed the crime, and then fled to his brother's house in East Boston. The police have been unable to find him, although officers are searching Boston and Lynn.

He returned to the scene of the crime and hung around the place for a while, but before the police arrived he had again disappeared.

Pelosi, who is a thrifty and sober young shoemaker, employed by A. E. Little & Company's shoe factory in Lynn, brought his young wife to the Foster place tenement last week. He had been told by friends that she had deceived him. Yesterday, when she was away in Cambridge, he searched a box she had concealed in the house and found the pictures of several men.

Shot While Asleep.

When she returned, he upbraided her and there was a quarrel. Pelosi left the house, bought a revolver, and as the hour struck midnight shot her dead, as she lay sleeping in bed. Then he sat down to the kitchen table and wrote this note, which he stuck to the door of their apartments:

Boston, Mass., May 19th.

I am filled with thankfulness and want my friends to come and see me. But don't be sorry, because she was bad. I have been in this country seven years, but I have learned that she is not what I supposed she was before I married her. She has had several husbands and that is the motive.

I don't care if they kill me for it and I have had patience with her, but she did not know when she was well off.

The only ones who knew of the motive were she, my father, Benimino, and God. Send to my brother, Luigi, and my sister, Flora, and when they find me don't say bad things about me. She was bad, and I killed her. I could have killed him also because of the love I had for her.

I told her I wanted to kill her.

Do this at 12 o'clock.

H. H. Rogers's Widow to Receive Millions

ROGERS WILL SLEEP BESIDE HIS MOTHER IN $2,000,000 TOMB

FAIRHAVEN, May 20.—The body of Henry H. Rogers is to be brought to Fairhaven to-morrow afternoon or early to-morrow night in a special train from New York. The body will rest beside that of the financier's mother in the $2,000,000 mausoleum that Mr. Rogers built at Fairhaven.

After the services have been held to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock at Mr. Rogers's New York home the body will be conveyed to the special train and conveyed to Fairhaven.

Rev. Dr. Robert Collyer, pastor of the Church of the Messiah in New York and one of Mr. Rogers's most intimate friends, is to conduct the services in New York.

Arriving here Mr. Rogers's body will be placed in the $1,000,000 Unitarian Memorial Church, which was erected by the financier in remembrance of his mother. It will remain at the church over night and until the hour of interment of Saturday afternoon.

Simple funeral services are to be conducted in the Memorial Church on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. They will be private. From 10 o'clock Saturday morning until 1 o'clock in the afternoon the body will lie in state in the church.

Children to View Body.

During the first hour of this time the children of Fairhaven, in whom Mr. Rogers always had the deepest interest, will be admitted to the church with their teachers. From 11 o'clock until 1 o'clock the general public will be admitted to view the body.

At 2:30 the final services over the body are to be held. The Rev. Frank L. Phalen, pastor of the Unitarian Memorial Church, will be in charge. He is to be assisted by the Rev. Dr. Collyer of New York and the Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, president of the American Unitarian Association and son of former President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard.

Mr. Rogers's two favorite hymns and an anthem will be sung at this service by the regular Unitarian Church choir of Fairhaven. They are "Lead, Kindly Light," "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and "O, Ivy Thy Tears." Brief remarks by the clergy and the reading of the Unitarian burial liturgy will conclude this service.

Tribute to Financier.

A very beautiful tribute is to be paid the dead friend of the Fairhaven children. Flanking both sides of the main driveway through Cushman Park which Mr. Rogers last Summer completed for his home town the children will stand as the funeral cortege passes on its way to the cemetery.

A committee of the most prominent citizens is in charge of the funeral arrangements. It is composed of Walter P. Winslow, president of the First National Bank of New Bedford, chairman; Thomas A. Tripp, Rev. Dr. Frank Phalen, George H. Tripp, city librarian of New Bedford, and Frank M. Marsh, superintendent of the Fairhaven public schools.

On Sunday special services are to be held in the Unitarian Memorial Church in recognition of Mr. Rogers's life and services to the church and the community.

Financiers at Funeral.

At the services in New York the music will be furnished by the Mendelssohn Quartet. Only the relatives and immediate friends and business associates of Mr. Rogers will be admitted to the service. Business in Wall street will be practically suspended because the leaders in business affairs will be at the funeral. All of Mr. Rogers's friends in the Standard Oil Company, including John D. Rockefeller, are to attend.

The coffin containing the body will leave the Rogers home at No. 3 East Seventy-eighth street at 9:30 o'clock. The pall-bearers will be lifelong friends of Mr. Rogers.

The pall-bearers will be William Rockefeller, John D. Archbold, E. T. Bedford, James A. Moffett, Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), E. H. Harriman, Rayneld De Pau, C. H. Gary, Melville E. Stone, John D. Ryan, J. J. Hood, General James Jordan, Charles Peabody, H. C. T. Wright, T. J. Perkins and Colonel C. A. Pilne.

1,000 ARE IN PERIL ON LINER

ST. JOHNS, N. F., May 20.—Surrounded by miles of ice, the Allan line steamship Mongolian, with 1,000 passengers aboard, is helpless one mile from port. The ice, which has caught the great steamship, is becoming more threatening every hour. It is feared that the Mongolian will be carried ashore, and that she may be broken to pieces.

Her passengers have no hope of escape by boats. At noon they began to take to the ice and tried to walk ashore.

When the predicament of the ship, in a disaster unique to great ocean liners, became known the women seemed to be the first to realize it and two of them led the way to freedom. This hope, however, was soon cut off by the continual piling up of the immense cakes of ice.

Only a bare score of passengers were able to get away from the ship before the fast closing in ice blocked this way to safety. They had but a mile to go, but the ice, piled high, and soon the path was blocked.

All the steamers which went out in answer to the Mongolian's appeals for help were wedged in the ice and unable to get near the helpless liner. The steamer Prospero, which escaped the work of rescue, was the only one which has succeeded in escaping from the ice floe and getting back to port. The others are caught and pounding about in the ice, only the stanch iron hull of the Mongolian has kept her afloat this long.

As long as the wind keeps down the steamships caught in the floe are believed to be safe. Any strong gale from the eastward, however, is feared.

The great ice field extends from the imprisoned ships away to the horizon. It was a frightful sight aboard the Mongolian and Prospero.

The ice pack bore down on the Mongolian as she neared the coast yesterday, until, hemmed in on every side, further progress was impossible.

Hope dawned in the breasts of the 1,000 passengers, but it was stifled when the Prospero passed outside. The two steamers lay helpless all night.

100,000 HAIL TAFT ON VISIT TO CHARLOTTE

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 20.—Thousands of people turned out to-day to welcome President Taft on his visit to this city. It was estimated that there were 100,000 visitors in town. A salute of twenty-one guns was fired as the President entered the city. He got an old-fashioned Southern welcome.

A number of prominent citizens formed the reception committee. After the reception on the President's special train in North Charlotte there was a monster parade of a semi-military and industrial character.

The convoy recruited to escort President Taft to the reviewing stand consisted of the Eighteenth United States Regiment band, 8 companies of Union and Confederate soldiers, and the widow of "Stonewall" Jackson.

The program called for the President's speech from the reviewing stand and a trip to the Biddle University for Colored Boys, with another address.

The President will mark the culmination of the annual celebration of the signing of the Mecklenburg declaration of independence, which, it is claimed, was the first step toward liberty taken by the American colonists.

The Mecklenburg declaration long has been a subject of controversy. It is declared by its supporters to have antedated the famous declaration of July 4, 1776, and on the other hand it has been denounced as a "myth." It is claimed that the Mecklenburg declaration was signed on May 20, 1775.

BRAGG DEFAMATION WITNESSES HEARD

The case of Dr. Francis A. Bragg, a prominent physician, of Foxboro, who is suing Michael Ryan, also of that town, for $3,000 on a charge of defamation of character, was continued to-day in the Norfolk County Court before Judge Bishop in Dedham. Several witnesses testified that they had seen a slam in Depot square, Foxboro, on Dr. Bragg declares that he was defamed and for which he blames Michael Ryan. Chief of Police White of Foxboro testified that he had made two liquor raids on Ryan's premises, and had received his information from the Citizens' League, of which Dr. Bragg is a member. One of the raids was in March, 1908, just before election, and the other on July 9, the day before the poster appeared in Depot square.

Another witness, Joseph Russell, said he saw the slam on July 10 at 11 in the morning. He said that as he was looking at it Ryan had said to him: "What do you think of that? Isn't it quite a joke?"

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, Chicago, May 20.—The "Hitless Boys" looked easy to the "Speed Boys" when the Boston and Chicago American league teams lined up for the second battle of the series this afternoon.

There was no doubt that the White Sox were a demoralized lot. The team was never rated as much of a hitting combination, but this year they have not been able to either hit or field to any appreciable extent and the fans have become disheartened.

The reputation of the Red Sox had preceded them, however, and there was another good-sized crowd out to see the speed exhibition. The shift in the local team yesterday seemed to work no great wonders, although they did manage to score a run for the first time in many innings.

Manager Billy Sullivan and Owner Comiskey thrashed the matter out in a long talk this morning. Comiskey also had several of the players on the pan. He told them they would have to do better or something would fall on them.

The Red Sox were full of confidence, fight, ginger and everything else. Last goes to make a winning combination, and all hands resolved to make a grand clean up in this town to get revenge for some of the things the White Sox did to them last season.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, May 20.—The Cubs, headed by the crippled Frank Chance, were the Doves' opponents this afternoon in the first mixup of a three-game series. It was the first appearance of the Cubs in Boston this season.

Manager Frank Bowerman gingered up the Doves in morning practice and gave them to understand that five straight losing sessions were too much, and that winning efforts were wanted from now on. A little of this talk helps a good deal, and the Doves were far from discouraged when the umps called play.

The Cubs, fresh from a series of victories at the Philly camp, intended to muss up the Boston team considerably during the next couple of days. They were right in their strike piling up the winning games right along. Manager Chance is still as confident of winning the big honors this year.

On account of the good ball the Cubs have been playing and hoping to see the Doves regain their lost form, the boss turned out in force and the best crowd of the week attended the game, in spite of the chilly weather.

HIBERNIAN ROW STIRS HOUSE

LONDON, May 20.—There was a sharp passage in the House of Commons to-day between Secretary for Ireland Birrell and William Moore, member from Charmagh, resulting in the latter's declaration that charges were made of violent tactics pursued by the Ancient Order of Hibernians in seeking to recruit the ranks of their organization. In reply to Mr. Moore's question the secretary answered:

"The police are not aware that members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in Carrickmacross, County Tyrone, tried to get others to join the organization by boycotting and intimidation, by waylaying and assaulting them."

Moore asked if he was aware that Cardinal Logue had stated otherwise, whereupon Mr. Birrell replied:

"In a matter of this kind I prefer a policeman's evidences to a cardinal's."

WOMAN SUFFRAGE LOSES BY ONE VOTE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 20.—By one vote woman's suffrage was lost in the Senate to-day. The Billings bill, upon which the suffragists of the State centred their efforts, received twenty-five votes or one less than a majority.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

PROGRESS HERE PLEASES POPE

ROME, May 20.—Pope Pius X., in an audience given to Monsignor Lynch of Utica, N. Y., spoke of the many gratifying accounts he had received as to the prosperity of the Catholic Church in America.

Monsignor Lynch came to Rome as the representative of Bishop Ludden of Syracuse. When the monsignor explained his bishop's absence because of age and temporary infirmity, the Pope said, smilingly: "The bishop ought not to have excused him, for he is nearly a whole year younger than myself, but infirmities all that's a difference, and I am very sorry to hear it, for I know enough of your good bishop to appreciate greatly his work and character. I earnestly trust he will soon be in good health again. I wish you to take back with you my hearty blessing for him and his coadjutor, Monsignor Grimes, who I know will lighten his cares and labors."

Monsignor Conaty, Bishop of Los Angeles, and his brother, Rev. Bernard Conaty of Worcester, Mass., have also been received in audience by the Pope.

260,000 LOBSTERS ARRIVE IN BOSTON

What is probably the largest shipment of lobsters ever known to be shipped to Boston at one time arrived to-day on board the Dominion Atlantic line steamer Prince Arthur from Yarmouth, N. S. There were 1,467 crates, or about 260,000 lobsters in all. Prices on the delicious crustaceans remain about the same as last week—twenty cents a pound.

STARTLING CHANGES IN WORLD TOUR RACE

TODAY begins a new week in the cycle of subscription getting for the Boston American's Free Vacation Tours. It would be well to begin to-day to make strides for the first place in the voting list.

When the list appears on Sunday you will be surprised at the way some of the boys and girls have solicited subscriptions, and to-day came up to the Around-the-World Department and handed in a bunch.

William H. Blankenship, Cut Bills, Mass., accompanied by his mother, was a visitor at the Around-the-World Department. He is busily engaged in collecting subscriptions, and returned home thoroughly enthused with the contest idea. His mother is strongly supporting his candidacy, and he promised the support of the New Bedford police force. He has an especially good field to work in, being the only candidate in his vicinity.

James Mellen, No. 11 Walt street, Roxbury, is going to make a brave and valiant fight for a place among the winners. He is working night and main among his neighbors and friends and is planning many features for obtaining the paid-in-advance subscriptions.

Keep after the subscriptions. Keep after your friends. Keep after the high places and keep after the leaders. Set a merry pace and see how quickly the others will follow. Plug as hard as you can. The other contestants are doing their best. You must not show the white feather. The time to rest from your labors is when you are reposing on the richly upholstered cushion of a luxurious ocean liner, or extended in the depths of a steamer chair snugly wrapped in your steamer rug. That's the time to rest. That's the time to relax and enjoy to the full the result of your labors. And such rest, such relaxation. By the time you land on the other side your mind will be completely recuperated and the seeds of knowledge planted on the trip will be productive of results impossible to enumerate.

These were away down on the list last Sunday.

Why don't you try to be one of the surprises next Sunday and show your rivals that you are out to win. The hook voting of the last few days is merely an indication of what the pace will be from now on.

It is going to be a mighty battle. Gather up your ammunition and hold your strongholds in the way of subscriptions, while there is yet time. A good soldier is always ready for immediate attack. Your weapon is not a gun, but something just as powerful in this instance—SUBSCRIPTIONS.

If you have sent in a goodly number of votes by the paid-in-advance subscriptions, you may feel assured that the other boys and girls will have to hustle to overtake you, but first be sure you have done that. You are all familiar with the old proverb, "In times of peace prepare for war." While there yet is time prepare for the more strenuous days that are coming. Every list that will appear is going to furnish surprises for the contestants, and you cannot tell how far it will carry them up the line.

"I Intend to Win."

Take, for instance, Alice C. Muir, No. 109 Canterbury street, Worcester. She is so entirely dissatisfied with her standing as it appeared in actual print that she writes in to the Around-the-World Editor to-day, saying she intends to be a leader. "Watch me grow. Let those who can follow. That's me. Worcester is on the map, and I intend to represent it in the Tours to Europe. I always aim high. You see what the standing did for her.

Esther Koehler, No. 78 Dawson street, Roxbury, is making great strides toward the front, and is extending her efforts outside the boundaries of the United States. Yesterday she brought in five subscriptions, the papers to be delivered in Cuba. These subscriptions came from marines in Uncle Sam's service.

Gertrude Jacobs, No. 243 Cambridge street, Cambridge, yesterday brought in her first batch of subscriptions, announcing at the same time that she is now off for the front ranks in the voting list, and that she will have to be reckoned with before the contest is over. Her mother will accompany her if she wins.

Roger Conway of No. 216 Pearl street, Winter Hill, Mass., performed a somersault yesterday, when he turned in over 25,000 votes and jumped in over the heads of a number of his rivals. Conway's mother is highly interested in the contest and has arranged a surprise visit for Thursday, May 27, a feature of which will be a short travel talk by Peter S. McNally.

Ethel Catlin of No. 52 James street, Malden, has bestirred her friends, with the result that she has commenced to climb the ladder and declares that she will surely win one of the prizes.

George Hanlon of No. 109 Hancock street, Dorchester, was a visitor to-day and by handing in a large number of subscriptions regained his former standing on the list—fifth position. He intends to work every available point in his section and is hard after the subscriptions.

Wahnita Club Champion.

Read what the Wahnita Social Club of Reachmont has to say of Tressa Wiley, No. 158 Crescent avenue. It comes in the form of a letter from the president of the club, O. F. Hauck:

"The Wahnita Social Club of Reachmont endorses Tressa Wiley as their candidate in the Boston American Tour Contest and wishes to say that with the help of many other friends she will surely be one of the leaders at the close of the contest. A surprise is now being prepared for her which will make her a winner."

John Barth, No. 66 Gilbert street, Manchester, N. H., is putting up a plucky fight for one of the Around-the-World prizes. He is an ambitious young man, who is eager to embrace every opportunity that offers itself in the educational line and is particularly enthusiastic about this splendid offer. He is being ably coached by his teacher, Miss Caroline Head, who recently won a European trip in one of the local papers. It is the current belief that her school room cheers luck with it and this is held out as a good omen for Barth. He is making a thorough house to house canvass and is sending cards and flyers broadcast advertising his candidacy.

Walter Schrumph, No. 16 Central place, Clifftondale, has aroused the interest of the Methodist Sunday school in his behalf, and intends taking his Sunday school teacher as an escort if he is among the fortunate winners. He is planning an entertainment in a local hall in the near future. Young Schrumph is an attendant of the Felton School and is well known in his town.

Albert N. Lyons, No. 393 Warren street, Waltham, is circulating advertising cards among the leading people of this city announcing a concert and dance to be held at Menard Hall, Waltham, on the evening of May 24. The following well known artists will appear and the affair promises to be a huge success: Miss Fatima Francis Lyons, soprano; Miss Anna Cecilia Lyons, soloist, and Mr. Norval Francis, violinist.

Robina Atkins, No. 15 Bromfield street, Wollaston, jumped into fourth place among the girls, her father, who is a sea captain, polling a large number of subscriptions today by mail.

Leo Saltzger, No. 12 West street, Everett, jumped up in the list to-day with a 40,000 vote entry. He promises even a greater showing next week.

Anders Ericson, No. 67 Bearse avenue, Dorchester, has a surprise awaiting him. His father, unknown to him, has been

SUES WIFE HE SAYS IS CRUEL

Charles M. Kimball of No. 120 Winthrop street, Winthrop, a rich manufacturer has begun proceedings for divorce against his wife and claims that she has deported with goods belonging to him valued at several thousands of dollars.

He asserts to his friends that Mrs. Kimball drove him out of the house Monday night at the point a revolver, and that at midnight she summoned a furniture mover to their home and cleaned out the place.

The divorce papers charge Mrs. Kimball with being cruel and abusive, and various instances are cited by the husband where he alleges that she struck him. The couple have two boys, the oldest being Charles M. Kimball, Jr., who is a well-known athlete at the Winthrop High School.

The Kimballs have been married over twenty years and Mrs. Kimball was formerly a Miss Morrison of East Boston. Her sister is married to James Moran, the well-known bicycle rider.

MAY CUT WAGE OF THOUSANDS

FALL RIVER, May 20.—A reduction in wages amounting to 5 per cent. in the pay of thousands of workers in the print cloth mills of Fall River is possible during the six months beginning June 14, according to an announcement made, following a report by the Textile Council that the margin between the price of cotton and print cloth had dropped to 74.9222.

Under the sliding scale agreement between the workmen and manufacturers, the margin is figured from time to time and every six months wages are adjusted to correspond with the margin.

It is figured by operatives that the drop means a possible reduction of 8.4 per cent. in wages. As such a reduction, if made here, might be followed by similar action in the other cotton mill centres of New England, the matter is one of more than local interest.

DISEASE KILLS SCIENCE READER

NEW YORK, May 20.—Mrs. Elizabeth M. Warren, wife of Theodore D. Warren, former first reader of the First Church of Christ Scientist, in Orange, is dead of pneumonia at her home after both Christian Science and medical science failed to effect a cure. She was not quite sixty years old. Mrs. Warren had herself been a reader in the Science Church.

Before being converted to the faith Mr. and Mrs. Warren were members of the Brick Presbyterian Church of East Orange, where they lived for some years. She was a member of the New England Women, a society of Puritan descendants in Orange.

Christian Science healing was tried at first to allay the suffering of Mrs. Warren, and when that failed Dr. Eugene G. West, a homeopathist, was called.

MRS. GOULD MAY MARRY IN 3 MONTHS

NEW YORK, May 20.—Supreme Court Justice Gerard is expected to sign the decree which will grant Mrs. Frank J. Gould freedom within the next eight days.

The referee recommends that the plea of the petitioner to resume her maiden name, Helen Margaret Kelly, be granted. At the expiration of the three months interlocutory period Mrs. Gould will be at liberty to remarry.

It is understood Mrs. Gould will be awarded the custody of her two children, Helen, aged six, and Dorothy, aged four, both after a hasty approval of Gould, their father, will have care of them the other seven months.

According to Mrs. Gould's attorneys, the question of a financial settlement has never been a matter of litigation. It is contended that Mr. Gould will provide liberally for the wife.

Gould, the youngest son of Jay Gould and heir to $100,000,000, married Miss Kelly, daughter of the banker, Edward Kelly, after a hasty proposal on December 2, 1901. The Goulds lived together in seeming happiness until early in 1908. The trouble is alleged to have been caused by a visit which Gould paid to a young woman in the village on Cape Breton Island, Bay of Sidney, where the rich Yachtsman had stopped during a cruise. Soon afterward the young couple were reconciled, but separated again within a few months.

Miss Marjorie Stevens of New York was named by Mrs. Gould. She charged that Mr. Gould spent a considerable portion of his time in Miss Stevens's apartments, which he furnished her own in the Hotel Grand, Paris.

Hess Winter, an English actress, and wife of Percy Winter, the author, is also mentioned as one of Mr. Gould's friends.

Mr. Gould became acquainted with Miss Winter, it is alleged, at Martin's Cafe, in April, 1906. Later, at the Hotel Sherbrooke, the two are said to have spent many hours in each other's society. Miss Winter is now living at the Sonema. She admits a plaintiff's friendship, but denies all allegations.

ROSE WINTERS, NAMED IN CASE OF MRS. GOULD

ANNA GOULD IS UPHELD IN FRENCH COURT

PARIS, May 20.—The hearing of the appeal of Count René de Castellane against the award of the custody of his children to the Princess de Sagan, his former wife, was concluded in the Court of Appeals.

Advocate-General Justin Selignac summed up distinctly in favor of the Princess de Sagan, pointing out that it had been admitted she was a model wife until the making of certain assertions in the course of the divorce suits in behalf of Castellane. As regards the alleged premarital relations between her and the Prince de Sagan, the court had no concern with these.

If it were true that, after her divorce from Castellane, she had had a moment of weakness, that did not suffice to wipe out the good record of her whole life. Besides, her subsequent marriage to the Prince removed the whole of such incidents from the sphere of points connected with the case before the court.

M. Selignac was very severe on Count de Castellane's infidelity and extravagance. Whether the couple's debts amounted, as alleged on the one hand, to $2,800,000, or, as stated on the other hand, to $4,200,000, it was a preposterous amount for a household that rarely exceeded a budget of only $700,000.

Judgment will be announced on May 27.

LONDON IS A HEAVY BUYER IN NEW YORK

LONDON, May 20.—Owing to the political disturbances in France and the uncertainties of the budget exactions in England, large purchases of American securities are being made for high-class investment account. These purchases are not being made through the London Stock Exchange houses, but through large New York financial institutions. Hence they do not figure in what are termed on 'Change the daily balances.

TESLA HAS A NEW POWER INVENTION

NEW YORK, May 20.—Following the incorporation of the Tesla Propulsion Company, with $1,000,000 capital stock, at Albany, to exploit one of Nicola Tesla's inventions, Mr. Tesla announced the adoption of the device by the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company. "I have discovered a mechanical principle, entirely new and of the greatest economic value," Mr. Tesla said. "It is a principle which minimizes the size of the power producing plant and increases to a maximum the power produced."

DISCUSS PLANS TO AID BOSTON

After voting in favor of the plans for the merging of the Boston Merchants' Association and the Boston Chamber of Commerce several hundred of the leading business men of this city and many visitors from other parts of New England informally talked about closer trade relations and the consolidating of new industries.

James J. Storrow presided at the dinner at the Hotel Somerset. Walter M. Lowney, chairman of the committee in charge of the recent New England four, made his report. Bernard J. Rothwell spoke of the plans to be publicly gained by Boston business men in the recent tour. He said: "We have very little hope of competing successfully with the West and other parts of the country in the order manufactures. It seems to me that we must undertake a fleet line of manufactures."

John Lyndon, former mayor of Portsmouth, said: "One of the prime things in having a broader, bigger and a busier Boston is money. You all need that in connection with New York. There is not a man here but who is pouring his money into New York.

"I do not see any reason why the Boston people should sit idly by and let the commissioners of New York state say that there is no reason for connecting the Hoosac & Maine Railroad with a line to Buffalo. What Boston needs is a direct line to the West."

FIVE FIREMEN HURT IN NEW HAVEN BLAZE

NEW HAVEN, Ct., May 20.—Five firemen are in the hospital here to-day suffering from injuries sustained in a fire which swept the basement of the building occupied by J. A. Nettle's dry goods store, the Modern Clothing Company and the Bijou Theatre. The loss is $8,000.

TELLS OF TWO MURDERS.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., May 20.—George Vos, a Hungarian who surrendered himself to the police here, has confessed to the murdered his wife, made a second statement to Chief of Police Hindle, in which he declared he killed Joseph Ivan in Toledo, O., in 1904.

MOTHER OF SEVEN TAKES OWN LIFE

NEW YORK, May 20.—"My mamma's acting awful funny," said three-year-old Nettie Tracy. "She's layin' on the floor." Those were the words that led to discovery of the suicide of Mary Tracy, wife of Mathew Tracy, a bricklayer's helper, living at No. 558 West Thirty-seventh street. The woman had taken a large dose of oxalic acid. She was the mother of seven children. Mrs. Tracy was despondent over the absence of her fourteen-year-old daughter, who left home after a quarrel about four weeks ago.

BROKERS IN FAILURE FOR HALF MILLION

"Here is a statement that we have made out. It is all we have to say now. A fuller statement may be made later."

The statement, which had already been prepared in typewritten form, was as follows:

Hit by Other Failures.

The heavy withdrawals caused by the failure of Ennis & Stoppani and Tracey & Co. apparently have impaired the capital of the firm. After conferring with counsel, therefore, and on examination of the books, it has been deemed in the interest of our creditors to suspend business.

An examination of the firm's assets will be made at once and a statement issued.

"What are the liabilities?" asked the reporter.

"We have nothing to say about that at present," replied the young man.

"Will you say what stocks you have been handling?" was asked.

"No, we have nothing further to say," was the young man's answer, and he walked away.

Three Members of Firm.

The firm is composed of A. B. Sederquist, John E. Barry and D. E. Bigelow, Mr. Sederquist lives at Auburndale. Mr. Barry's home is at No. 73 Lyndhurst street, Dorchester. Mr. Bigelow has an apartment at No. 128 Huntington avenue.

The firm was formerly Curtis & Sederquist. Five years ago William P. Foster sought by legal action to recover $150,000 profits of the concern, as a sub-partner of Albert O. Shaw, who was at that time a third equal partner. At that time it was declared that the firm made a yearly profit of $150,000.

$500,000 INVOLVED; MOSTLY IN BOSTON COPPER SECURITIES

NEW YORK, May 20.—The suspension of Sederquist, Barry & Co., which had its New York office at No. 52 Broadway, involves half a million dollars and was concerned chiefly with Boston copper securities. The firm has dealt extensively on the New York curb market and in Boston in copper securities and also has conducted a consolidated brokerage business. Their consolidated business was turned over last week to Theodore P. Wilson, and it was said to-day the failure would affect Boston investors. The failure caused great surprise in New York financial circles to-day.

MILL WORKERS HIT BY CLOSING AT NEW BEDFORD

NEW BEDFORD, May 20.—The New Bedford branch of the Boston banking firm of Sederquist, Barry & Co. closed its doors to-day. The office is in the Cummings building on Williams street. When about twenty-five patrons reached the office to-day they were confronted by a notice on the door that the firm had assigned.

The office has done a large business here during the past five years and had customers in this city and all the surrounding towns. George W. Swain, the local manager, said:

"I am greatly surprised to hear that our firm has made an assignment. Of course, we have stopped all business here and all the effects will be turned over to the Boston office. I can say nothing about the liabilities."

Many of the customers here were well people who were furehanded and who thought of increasing their funds with supposed judicious stock investments.

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 20.—Sederquist, Barry & Co. of Boston have a branch office in the Pickering building on Elm street. The Manchester creditors of our firm will probably lose between $3,000 and $5,000," said Manager Clinton A. Moore. "That amount is divided among many people."

DEATH THREAT IN LETTER TO REGESTER GIRL

PROVIDENCE, May 20.—A young woman name the police have not divulged told them to-day that Laura E. Regester, who was murdered at Cranston, near her home, received a death threat in a letter two months before.

Another young woman who saw the letter and who talked with Miss Regester the day she received it at the factory where the three girls were employed, is in Boston, and the police will find her to-day and see if she can throw any additional light on the mystery.

The death-threat letter was in the handwriting of a man, but so far as the girl who saw the police to-day could recall it was not signed. It is believed, though, that Miss Regester knew the name of the writer, and it is hoped that she divulged it to the girl in Boston or some other of the girls in the factory.

The police have the name of the girl in Boston, and there will be no difficulty, they declared, in locating her. This is the story the girl told the police to-day:

Tore Letter Up.

"I have just returned from Boston to tell you about my acquaintance with Miss Regester. She worked side by side with me and another girl whom I left in Boston.

"One day after luncheon, about two months before she was killed Laura came into the factory with a letter in her hand. She was laughing, and she said she had just received a letter that contained a death threat. She showed the letter to me, and I just glanced at it. It was easy to see that it had been written by a man.

"The other girl saw the letter, too. The letter said that she would be killed if she carried out her intention to be married. That was the sense of the letter, but not the exact wording. I cannot remember that.

Police Busy on Case.

"Laura remarked among other things to the girl who is now in Boston: 'Well, I was all right when I was married before, and I guess I can take the chance now. It looks as though this writer meant trouble for me now. It may be that I will never get married—that is, unless I get out of town.'

"'But pshaw! I don't mind?'

"With that Laura tore the letter up. It may be that she mentioned to the other girl the name of the writer, but she did not tell me."

The police here regard this as a promising clew, and the girl in Boston is to be seen at once.

NO FIVE-CENT ICE; PEOPLE TO FIGHT

NEW YORK, May 20.—Plans to fight the Ice Trust in Manhattan were formulated on the lower East Side by residents of that section because the trust has refused to sell five-cent cakes during the Summer. The fight has been inaugurated by the East Side Property Owners' Association, which to-day decided practically to go into the ice business on its own account and to sell ice to the East Siders in five-cent cakes at cost.

MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE BATTLES WOMAN THIEF

NEW YORK, May 20.—A woman burglar who got in the home of Millionaire James G. McLoughlin, No. 27 Fifth avenue, today by forcing the front door with a jimmy, was captured after a struggle with Mrs. McLoughlin, who was aroused while the intruder was leaving with hundreds of dollars' worth of plunder.

The woman gave her name as Mrs. Julia Lobue and her age as 28. Later she was lined up with dozens of men criminals at police headquarters. When the woman broke into the McLoughlin home Mr. and Mrs. McLoughlin, their daughter, Cornelia, their sons, Gregory and J. Comerford McLoughlin, and half a dozen servants were asleep. The intruder went to the dining room, where she took two silver candle sticks and two silver castors, besides silver spoons and other valuables.

With these in her arms she went into the hallway, where she dropped one of the silver dishes.

Mrs. McLoughlin was aroused by the noise and tiptoed to the head of the stairs. She saw the woman and thought she was one of the servants.

"Who are you? What is the matter?" she asked, and at the same time she started downstairs. The burglar did not answer, but started toward the front door. Mrs. McLoughlin pursued her and began calling for help. When the burglar reached the front door she tripped and fell to the floor, dropping her loot. Before she regained her feet Mrs. McLoughlin reached her.

The woman burglar wrested herself free from her captor and started up the main stairway. The butler pursued her.

Several men who heard the struggle seized the woman and held her until a policeman appeared.

ADVANCE GUARD OFF FOR SEATTLE FAIR

The first expedition from this part of the country to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition at Seattle, Wash., left here to-day when the New England delegation to the annual convention of the National Retail Grocers' Association started in a special train over the Boston & Maine Railroad. The grocers are to go first to Portland, Ore., where their convention is to be held from June 8 to 6. Then they will go to Seattle to visit the big exposition. June 8 is "Grocers' day" there. The New England party, under the management of George F. Manser, of Portland, Me., and Washington street, Boston, stop at Chicago, Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

MISS BOOTH'S WORK.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Commander Eva Booth of the Salvation Army, dressed in the costume of a London flower girl, talked to an audience that comfortably filled Orchestra Hall last evening. Miss Booth told of her work in the slums of London and Paris and said that love, sympathy, service and action were the four essentials of a mission worker's spiritual equipment.

SICK KIDNEYS.

If any of your family in this or past generations have had kidney disease of any kind, you should guard against it before it is too late.

Mrs. F. R. Hahn, of Hickory, N. C., who suffered from kidney and liver troubles, was completely cured by Warner's Safe Cure after two doctors had failed to give her relief.

Mrs. Hahn writes: "I was a great sufferer from kidney and liver trouble. I was treated by two prominent physicians, who failed to help me. I then tried Warner's Safe Cure, which gave me immediate relief and soon cured me. I consider Warner's Safe Cure the best medicine for the kidneys and liver I ever used. I will always be pleased to recommend it."

When the kidneys are diseased the uric acid is not carried off, and this causes Gout, Lumbago, Rheumatism of the Joints, Rheumatism of the Muscles, Rheumatism of the Heart, Rheumatism everywhere. Warner's Safe Cure drives out the uric acid.

Billousness and Constipation.

WARNER'S SAFE PILLS, sugar-coated, absolutely free from injurious substances, a perfect laxative, will cure Indigestion, Billousness, Torpid Liver and Constipation. They do not gripe.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE is put up in two sizes and is sold by all druggists, at 50 CENTS AND $1.00 A BOTTLE. Refuse substitutes containing harmful drugs which injure the system.

TRIAL BOTTLE FREE To convince from diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood that WARNER'S SAFE CURE will cure them, a trial bottle will be sent FREE OF CHARGE, postpaid, to any one who will write WARNER'S SAFE CURE CO., Rochester, N. Y., and mention having seen this liberal offer in the Boston American.

Give a Clean Milkman Your Trade

Our dairies are sanitary. Our cows are inspected; so are the men who milk them. We promise you germless milk. You will get from us nothing but rich Holstein milk, and the cost will be six cents per quart.

That is our proposition. We ask you to try us one day.

Get one can of Van Camp's and make one milk dish with it. Learn the flavor that comes from whole milk.

Serve it once in your coffee. Let your children drink one glass. Learn what pure milk means.

Find out, for one day, how convenient it is to have rich milk or cream when you want it.

We refer you to scores of your neighbors. We are their milkmen. Ask how they like our milk.

Then give us one chance to do for you what we have done for them.

Not a Half-Milk

When you taste your first milk dish made with Van Camp's, you'll be surprised at the richness and flavor.

You'll wonder what we have added.

But we add nothing at all.

You have been used to a half-milk, because milkman's milk separates. The butter fat rises and the solids fall, before and after you get it.

In Van Camp's, for the first time, you get whole, rich milk. And you learn what milk should be.

You'll never be content with milkman's milk after cooking one dish with Van Camp's.

The Natural Milk

Van Camp's is simply rich Holstein milk, with two-thirds the water evaporated. Nothing whatever is added. Nothing is subtracted save water.

It is only the richest milk, fresh from the cow, evaporated close to our dairies.

It is preserved solely by sterilization. So it comes to you as fresh as it came from the cow.

The slight almond flavor—apparent only when the milk is drunk cold—is due to sterilization. No milk can be pure without it.

When you heat the milk—as in cooking or coffee—this slight flavor disappears. Then you have but the natural flavor of the richest milk or cream.

Cheaper Than Raw Milk

Van Camp's is as thick as thick cream—so thick that you add one part water for coffee. Yet it doesn't cost half what you pay your milkman for cream.

Add two parts water and you have rich milk. The cost of such milk, when you buy Van Camp's by the case, is but six cents per quart.

Then you have no waste—no milk left over. That saving, in itself, is enormous.

So you have a cow in your kitchen—rich milk or cream whenever you want it. Yet it costs less than day-to-day buying.

You have a pure rich milk for less than you pay for a half-milk laden with germs.

Milk Without Germs

In Van Camp's you get milk without sickness; no germs of consumption from tubercular cows. None of the infections which make raw milk the most terrible foe of humanity.

Our cows are inspected; so are the men who milk them. Our dairies are sanitary. Our buildings are built without wood.

Then our milk is pasteurized.

Your children can drink Van Camp's without risk. You can serve it without serving disease.

Not so with milkman's milk. In every drop there lurks a myriad of germs, and you never know what they are.

Not Condensed Milk

Condensed milk is half sugar. You can't use it for cooking. Don't think that Van Camp's is like that.

Nor is it like other brands of evaporated.

Van Camp's Milk shows about 8 per cent of butter fat. That's because we use Holstein milk, and take out two-thirds the water.

But milk less rich, or with more water left in, may still be called "evaporated."

These lesser brands cost the same as Van Camp's. Be careful to get the best.

Van Camp's Milk comes in 5 and 10-cent cans, at your grocer's. It is put up at our dairies, in five states, where we milk 20,000 Holstein cows.

LOWELL ASKS CO-OPERATION OF STUDENTS

Asking the co-operation of every student in the work which he has just begun, President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard, to-day made a short but earnest address to the 400 or more men who attended the first lecture he has given since becoming the head of the foreign institution.

When President Lowell took his place on the platform he was greeted with a round of applause. He said: "It is a great stimulation to any teacher to have the privilege of talking to a class of young men like this.

"I am going to leave this pleasant work and take up a job which I have less about, and which is beset by endless difficulties. Few things are so full of thorny and difficult questions and problems as the American college. It is being attacked on all sides and for all sorts of reasons.

"Three-fourths of the education says that there should be no college in the American university, but that the college should be a thing distinct from the university, as the preparatory school is distinct from the college. I do not believe this at all, but I do know that to make a college what it should be, to have it be of service to all the students who come to it, is not by any means an easy thing.

"We here ought to be able to have it said that Harvard turns out better all-round men than any other college. And to do this there are many improvements that must be made—in study, in the devotion to work, and in the cultivation of the qualities that make good citizens. I feel myself incompetent to do all this; I shall want your help and co-operation in all the work which I try to do for the college."

$10,000 MACKEREL CATCH.

Word was received along the water front to-day that the fishing schooner Mary E. Horty, Captain "Rube" Cameron, had arrived at Newport, R. I., with the largest catch of mackerel of the season. There were 45,000 fish, mostly medium, with a small amount of very large blasters. The catch netted about $10,000 at 25 cents each.

BROKER TELLS WHY HE HAS TWO WIVES

NEW YORK, May 20.—Samuel B. Wellington, the aged broker, when arraigned in tombs court on a charge of bigamy preferred by Mrs. Maud Hardner Wellington, admitted having married the complainant on February 16, 1907.

Since that time he has twice been married. His second wife died and he took another last April. Mrs. Wellington No. 2 was formerly Miss Florence May Cushman, a pretty manicurist in the Hoffman House.

"I left my first wife two months after the marriage and then instructed my lawyers to secure an annulment," said Wellington in defense of his dual alliance.

"I have never seen her since. I married again nine years ago and my second wife died. I did not even know that my first wife was alive."

MARY GARDEN NEAREST THE IDEAL FORM

Is the human form divine?

Hugh Cairns, the Boston sculptor, says it isn't at the present time.

Mrs. Adelaide Johnston, the world-famous sculptor of New York, says it is.

After Hugh Cairns had declared in no uncertain terms that the women of 1909 have ruined their figures by wearing corsets, high heels and heavy hats, Mrs. Johnston hastened to the rescue of her sex.

Although Mr. Cairns insists that the women of to-day are getting farther and farther away from the Greek ideal by trying to bring the waist line down as low as the hips, instead of leaving it just under the bust, Mrs. Johnston says that the normal woman's figure is just as beautiful and symmetrical now as in the Phidian and Praxitelean.

"I don't quite see what Mr. Cairns means by saying the waist line ends just under the bust," said Mrs. Johnston in her studio at No. 5 East Thirty-sixth street, New York. "The waist line is a purely arbitrary thing which we have adopted, and which may change with fashions in clothes without altering the figures under them.

"The best way to show you that the so-distorted figure of 1909 is quite as beautiful and symmetrical as that of the Greek women is to furnish proof. Here is a photograph of a statue of Venus and one of Mary Garden. If these figures were in the same pose, their lines would be almost identical, except for the magnificent square shoulders which Miss Garden has and which differentiate the modern woman from the classical ideal and are much to her advantage, I think.

"I love the square shoulders of the woman of to-day. The body is always a symbol of the mind and squared shoulders show women's new attitude toward life. They indicate the chemicalization through which she is passing, for every day women are advancing while men are remaining stationary."

When Mr. Cairns heard what Mrs. Johnston said, he chuckled.

"Mrs. Johnston thinks she disagrees with me, when as a matter of fact, she bears out my theory entirely," he declared. "She says herself that she doesn't wear corsets and only wears the so-called fash-ionable clothes on the street for effect. If she wears a Greek gown in her studio, that waist line must be where I insist it should be, directly under the bust."

MORSE HOME TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

NEW YORK, May 20.—The announcement is made to-day that the Charles W. Morse mansion, at No. 728 Fifth avenue, is to be sold under the auctioneer's hammer on June 10. Creditors having more than $400,000 in claims against the residence have obtained a court order authorizing the disposal of the property to the highest bidder.

This means that Mrs. Morse, wife of the former ice king, will be dispossessed, unless friends of the imprisoned capitalist come to her aid and raise more than half a million dollars to save this remnant of what was five years ago one of the greatest fortunes in America.

TAX REFORM VICTORY IN SIGHT TO-DAY

The critical stage in the fight in favor of more equable taxation through a proper classification of property in this State is reached in the Senate this afternoon when a reconsideration of a bill for an amendment to the constitution with a view to such changes comes up.

The bill was temporarily killed by the lobby by a vote of 17 to 16 last week, but such a strong fight has been made in favor of a constitutional amendment by various Boston business concerns and organizations since that time is every reason to believe that the vote will be reconsidered to-day and that the proposed amendment will go through. The House is strongly in favor of it.

System Is Inequitable.

The system of taxation now is not equitable, the business organizations point out, and manufacturers have been kept out of the State in consequence. In the one item of forest lands it is claimed that if this property were placed under a proper classification for taxation 2,500,000 acres of land that is now "waste," or nearly so, and valued at $20,000,000, could, if properly planted in pine, be worth $500,000,000 in fifty years.

Should the proposed bill go through, it would make no change in taxation of itself but would only give future legislatures the right to make desirable changes in classification.

Would Help Real Estate.

To have an amendment to the Constitution, a bill must pass two successive General Courts and then the people have a chance to vote on it. Certainly, it is pointed out, the people have a right to say what they want in this matter, and they are competent to decide.

Some of the organizations which are pushing the amendment are the Boston Merchants' Association, New England Shoe and Leather Association, Massachusetts State Board of Trade, Massachusetts Forestry Association, Lynn Manufacturers' Association and others.

Some real estate owners oppose the measure because of the fear it would depreciate real estate. It is pointed out that any change likely to be made in taxation laws would encourage the general prosperity of the State, which would redound to the benefit of real estate, as well as any other property.

DR. GATES MAY BE DARTMOUTH HEAD

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Dr. George A. Gates, the first head of the Pomona College, who resigned soon after Christmas on account of failing health, and is now on a six months's trip to the Antipodes, is slated for the presidency of Dartmouth College.

The New Hampshire institution has several times offered the place to Dr. Gates, who declined, but it is understood he will be willing to accept when the next college year opens. He is now nearly well recovered. He is a graduate of Dartmouth, and his son will graduate there in June. Dr. Gates will make his official announce-

WOMAN AND BOY SHE RESCUED IN FIGHT WITH DOG

Mrs. P. L. Hughes and her seven-year-old son, Dominick.

MOTHER SAVES HER CHILDREN, CHOKING DOG

Mrs. P. L. Hughes of No. 466 Pleasant street, Winthrop, inspired by mother love, fought off a vicious bulldog owned by Dr. J. J. Malloy, a neighbor, last night, and was bitten by the drunken brute before she was able to choke him into submission by opening him between a door and the wall.

He had invaded her home and was trying to get into the room where her little son, Dominick, seven years old, and her daughter Lia, four, were sleeping, and she believes they might have been terribly mangled if she had not been able to keep the dog out.

"I did not think of myself at all—only of my children," said the mother to-day.

Mrs. Hughes' family have a collie dog named Clinker, which sleeps at the foot of the children's bed at night. Dr. Malloy's dog chased Clinker upstairs and toward the bedroom after Mrs. Hughes separated the fighting animals.

Mrs. Hughes slammed the door and held the brute in the trap until he succumbed. When he was limp and ceased to move he was carried to his owner's house.

YANKEE GEMS GIVE GUESTS A SURPRISE

LONDON, May 20.—Hundreds of members of the Women's Liberal Federation, guests of Lady Granard (formerly Miss Mills of New York), invited to the magnificent Carlos street house to meet Prime Minister and Mrs. Asquith, crowded and jostled their hostess, who was radiant in the satin, tulle and a blaze of diamonds.

Lord and Lady Granard received their guests alone at the head of the main staircase as the Asquiths were very late. The women pushed and crowded up the gay, gilded stair, greeted their beautiful hostess and then fell back to stare at and admire her gorgeous attire.

There was more confusion when the Premier and his wife appeared. They were buffeted and crowded by the women who pressed upon them to greet them. London liberal women and the few men present fell to the corners of the room till the stampede ended.

Hair Humbugs

How many readers of this paper have been humbugged with either worthless or dangerous preparations for the hair? How many of you have one more hair now than you had before you used them? There is but one thing needed in treating the hair more than any other thing, and that is cleanliness. You don't wash out of your scalp and hair the dandruff, dirt, dust and disease germs as fast as they appear. Scales form on your head, the pores become clogged, and the first thing you know the hair falls out. Sooner or later baldness is bound to result. Plain soap won't do, because plain soap leaves your hair and scalp dry, and that is bad. Use Birt's Jessie Soap, and your head will feel cleaner and be cleaner than ever before in your life. Your hair will be silky and lustrous, and you will wonder what's in Birt's Head Wash to make it do so much good. And the best of it is we tell you. Here are the ingredients: Refined Soap, Glycerin, White of Eggs, Cochin Cocoanut Oil and Salicylic Acid. Ask your doctor what he thinks of this formula. Price 50 cents.

CONTEST OVER, JUDGES TO SEE 'CINDERELLAS'

The BOSTON AMERICAN'S Cinderella foot contest to find the smallest and prettiest foot in or about Boston, is closed.

The time limit for receiving entries was 5 p. m. to-day sharp. After that hour no entries were taken. But contestants were coming in and filling their entry blanks, measurements and drawings up to the last minute.

There are one hundred and sixty girls and women entered in this interesting and artistic contest.

The Cinderella Editor is gratified that such a large number came in. The fact seemed to be established that there are plenty of small feminine feet in Boston, despite various reports to the contrary from other cities.

The conditions of the contest were that all candidates must be sixteen years old or over and at least five feet in height.

The most promising thirty from the entire list are to be selected to go before the board of judges for final examination. Notices will be sent out promptly to each one who qualifies in the best thirty. The board of judges is composed of the following:

Mrs. Theo Ruggles Kitson of Quincy, sculptor.

Miss J. N. Oliver, artist, Copley Studios, Boston.

Miss Sally M. Cross, artist, Pope Building, Boston.

There are four prizes. These are offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN for the smallest and prettiest foot, as follows:

First—A golden slipper inlaid with jewels.

Second—A silver scrolled slipper.

Third—$25 in cash.

Then there is a fourth and a separate prize. This is nothing less than a place in "A Stubborn Cinderella" company, now playing at the Colonial Theatre. This offer is made by Manager Arthur Hopkins of the company, on behalf of Mort. H. Singer, proprietor of the production.

The board of judges will select the winners of the three prizes offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN, Manager Houghton of "A Stubborn Cinderella" company will select the winner of the position offered in his company.

DICKINSON ILL; BOUND FOR HOME

HAVANA, May 20.—The visit of the American Secretary of War, Jacob M. Dickinson, to Havana, has been cut short, owing to his illness, and the yacht Mayflower has sailed with the secretary aboard. Secretary Dickinson will be taken direct to Washington. He has been confined to his stateroom for three days, suffering from vesical stone. His condition is not alarming.

PROMINENT MEN TEMPERANCE TALK

To-night at the Ward 17 municipal building, corner Vine and Dudley streets, Roxbury, Bernard E. Rothwell, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, will speak on the "Boston of 1915" movement. Judge Sullivan of the Dorchester District Court and John T. Shea of Cambridge will also speak. An entertainment will be furnished by their remarks. The affair is under the direction of St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Literary Society of the district.

BOSTON HOME OF BIG PLOT TO SMUGGLE

Confident that they have unearthed a gigantic smuggling plot in Boston, the United States customs officers started to-day to search for the "man higher up," who, they believe, has systematically defrauded the government out of thousands of dollars by hiring agents to smuggle semi-precious stones.

Several seizures have already been made, the biggest being $1,500 worth of coral just taken from an under steward of the steamship Romanic, but the authorities believe they missed the largest one of all when two sailors of the Canopic dropped a bundle overboard as they were caught by the police rowing away from their ship.

As a result of their discoveries, all the customs officers at this port have been directed to scrutinize all passengers arriving in Boston from foreign ports and to examine all cabins of the transatlantic fleet. It may be necessary to search in coming passengers.

The smuggling is believed to be confined to topaz, amethysts, lapis lazuli, moonstones, bloodstones, garnets, corals and similar jewels. Recent changes in fashions have made these goods particularly marketable. As the duty is only 10 per cent, smuggling operations through hired agents must be conducted on a mammoth scale to be profitable.

The first discovery was made six months ago, when Inspector Sleep, in examining an immigrant's trunk discovered that it was deeper outside than inside. Finding a false bottom, he extracted $1,000 worth of semi-precious stones from the trunk.

Inspector Sleep got the man with the coral. He is Vincenzo Marrazzo of the Romanic. Although Marrazzo denied that his body the inspector found five large, heavy packages containing sixteen smaller packages, all sealed. They were found to enclose 4,000 pieces of coral, appraised roughly at $1,500. Marrazzo declared that he had been given the coral to deliver to a man, whose name he does not know, in Friend street, Boston. Coral is subject to a 50 per cent. duty.

HUNTINGTON QUITS FINANCE FOR FARM

NEW YORK, May 20.—Henry E. Huntington, who has practically given up his business interests here that he might give his time to farming in Southern California, left his apartments yesterday at the Metropolitan Club for the new villa he is building at Oak Knoll, near Los Angeles. It is Mr. Huntington's belief that the soil and climate of Southern California are capable of producing all sorts of products, and that the time is not far distant when he will be able to provide his theory on his own 4,000 acres. Some years ago Mr. Huntington intended to retire from active business when he was sixty years old, and for more than a year he has been preparing for this retirement.

IMPORTANT REALTY SALE IN SOUTH END

The South End House Association has purchased from James C. Haynes the three and one-half story and basement brick house and 2,304 square feet of land at No. 22 Union Park street, near Shawmut avenue. This property, which adjoins their present holdings, is assessed for a total of $10,500, of which $4,000 is on the land.

John L. Batchelder et al. have sold to Giovanni Ghirardelli the frame house and 684 square feet of land at No. 59 Hull street, near Snow Hill street, North End. The real estate is taxed on a total valuation of $3,000, of which $2,200 is on the land.

To Rodney Lawrence Minot, trustee, has sold to the Plastic Laundry Company a plot of 25,000 square feet, situated on land at the corner of Albion and Fairhaven street. The tract is bounded forward and Magazine streets and it is the intention of the purchasers to improve the lot.

Amelia Holmes parcel, or corporate of the brick house and 1,049 square feet at No. 67 Bowdoin street, opposite Bradley park, assessed for $2,500, of which $400 is on the land.

In Jamaica Plain, the two and one-half story frame house and land on Boylston street, Flower street, has been sold to William E. Wight by Daniel J. Conway. The house, being one of four, is assessed.

Mary E. Dunn has sold to Miller G. Palmer a lot of 1,000 square feet and about 2,000 square feet of land and the two-story frame house on Bernard and Thomas streets.

John J. Buckland has sold to Carl Thomsen a lot of land, about 5,000 square feet, at the corner of Morton and Wildwood streets.

The Dorchester Trust has sold to William Vollmar et al. the lot of land on Alton court. Fifteen frame house and 6,100 square feet of land on the north side of Faneuil street, near Kittredge street, assessed for a total of $2,700, of which $300 is on the land.

In Jamaica Plain, Charles A. Bowditch has sold a frame building at the corner of Spring and Green streets, which has been sold by Arthur E. Bullard to William A. Platsted. The land is taxed for 10 cents.

The same agents have passed title to the house on No. 587-589 Washington street, East Boston. This house contains seven rooms and about 2,500 square feet of land. This estate is situated near the corner of Meridian street. The purchaser is Francis P. Howard, who buys for investment. This property is assessed for $2,700. The terms of sale were private.

The Chaplin Farm Agency has sold for the owner, A. A. Whitcomb, the house on the main stage road to Orange and Athol, in Warwick, comprising thirty acres of land, together with a thirteen-room farmhouse, barn, hennery and outbuildings. The sale was made to Edward Hall, who has also sold to A. G. Anderson of Portland, Me., who has already taken possession. The price is private.

SENDS $5,000 MORE TO HELP IRELAND

The United Irish League of America is taking vigorous action to sustain the Irish parliamentary party and the national movement in Ireland, as evidenced by the activity of the branches of the organization throughout the country. The national treasurer, T. B. Fitzpatrick, to-day forwarded another remittance of $5,000 of the amount pledged at the Boston convention to the national trustees in Ireland, this makes $30,000 sent to Ireland since October.

FOXWELL UNABLE TO SECURE BAIL

Still persisting that a great injustice has been done him by his arrest, Charles Leighton Foxwell, alleged to have been involved in transactions through which he secured about $20,000 from Boston and New York brokers, in connection with mining promotion schemes, is in Charles street jail pending his trial on May 26. He has been unable to secure the $4,000 bail fixed when he was arraigned in police court.

The specific charge against him is the larceny of $2,000, by false pretenses, from the Growler Mining Company.

PHONOGRAPH IN HIS HEAD, SAYS YOUTH

ATLANTA, Ga., May 20.—Saying that a phonograph in his head was constantly playing a tune; that he frequently heard threats against his life when no one was near; that his enemies would not let him work, but kept him on the move, allowing him not even time to sleep, John Rasbosky, who came from New York some time ago and bought a large vineyard near Talliposa, was held for examination as to his sanity. He had a few thousand dollars on deposit in Atlanta banks.

PREDICTED THAT HE'D BE DROWNED

PITTSBURG, May 20.—Charles S. Parsons, Yale '08, twenty-eight years old, until a short time ago connected with the Carnegie Technical School faculty, was drowned in the Ohio river here. "That will be my end some day," said Parsons recently, when he heard that twenty-four men had been drowned in the Ohio River. "I know I'll be drowned, because I can't swim, and I love the water."

GOVERNOR JOHNSON NOT TO RUN AGAIN

MINNEAPOLIS, May 20.—Governor John A. Johnson will not be a candidate for a fourth term. He will retire from the Governorship in January, 1911, after six years of continuous service, and the 1910 contest is open for candidates. The Governor's declaration was made in the most emphatic way when the question was submitted to him.

160,000 PROFIT IN BASEBALL

NEW YORK, May 20.—Some idea of the profit in major league baseball and what money is cleared by the owners of any ordinarily successful club is revealed here in the suit of Joseph Gordon, formed president of the Greener New York Baseball Association, against this organization, and Frank J. Farrell, present owner of the New York American League team, in which Gordon declares that "the Highlanders cleared $160,000 net in a year."

"The business is of great value," says Gordon in his complaint, "with large profits, and the approximate receipts for the season were about $240,000. There have already been five seasons' exhibitions with the annual cost of operation about $80,000, and the net receipts over and above such costs have been very large and far exceed the moneys put in by the defendant, Farrell."

Gordon demands the appointment of a receiver for the association and an accounting.

CALLS LABOR MEN ANIMALS

NEW YORK, May 20.—The gauntlet has been thrown in the face of labor by John Kirby, Jr., newly elected president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Animals" and "criminals" are among some of the epithets hurled by him at union men, his remarks are regarded by his hearers as bearing special reference to Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and others who are now under the ban of the United States Supreme Court on the charge of opposing an injunction.

Mr. Kirby, upon his election as president of the association, succeeding A. W. Van Cleve, said: "My policy will be that of James W. Van Cleve. I do not believe in compromise with criminals. It is better to bring the whole labor question to a pointed issue instead of temporizing and fooling with it.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

French Steamer Hits Dangerous Shoals.

DOVER.—The French steamer Racine went ashore early to-day upon the dangerous shoals of Goodwin Sands. Tugs were rushed to her assistance.

Strange Flyer Is a Mystery.

LONDON.—A mysterious aeroplane, or airship, which is flying over England, is becoming a nightmare. The flyer has turned up in the neighborhood of Cardiff, where a wealthier saw a cigar-shaped airship aground on the top of Penarth Mountain at about midnight. He relates how he watched two men apparently repairing the machine until they saw the watcher when they hastily soared away.

Royalty Is Won Over.

VIENNA.—The Austrian Imperial family has recognized the Countess Bacheoyi (Gladys Vanderbilt). The Court and Countess entertained several members of the Imperial family at a ball. Eminent members of the Austrian and Hungarian nobility formed a brilliant court around the young Archduchesses Gabriela and Isabella and the Countess Bacheoyi.

Idleness Insurance.

LONDON.—Winston Churchill will introduce a government bill creating a national system of labor exchanges similar to those on the Continent, with a view to relieving unemployment in London and other cities. He said the government intended to undertake a policy of unemployment insurance.

No Abbey Tomb for Meredith.

LONDON.—The Westminster authorities have declined permission to place the ashes of George Meredith in the abbey. An appeal to the Dean was supported by the Society of Authors, by Premier Asquith, Lord Morley, Rudyard Kipling and James M. Barrie.

Army Scandal in France.

PARIS.—Marix, a captain and rapporteur of the Council of War, the highest military tribunal of the nation, was arrested on charges of selling pardons. Cerez, a broker, was arrested as his accomplice. The affair threatens to involve statesmen, judicial authorities and lawyers.

Pope at Saints' Rites.

ROME.—At St. Peter's to-day the rites of canonization were conducted by the Pope. The two new saints are Joseph Oriol of Barcelona and Clement Hofbauer of Germany.

Strike Craze in Italy.

ROME.—A strike craze is sweeping through Italy. The street cleaners here have threatened to cease work. In Naples all the bakers and telephone girls will strike.

Bishop Farrelly Coming Over.

ROME.—The Rt. Rev. John Farrelly, the new Bishop of Cleveland, intends to sail from Cherbourg for the United States on June 6.

American Jailed.

PARIS.—M. Dwight Fortner of St. Louis is in jail here. He is wanted for an $11,000 forgery.

Duke of Aosta Ill.

ROME.—The Duke of Aosta is suffering from a sudden and mysterious illness.

HINT WASHTUB WILL FORGERY

That serious charges may be preferred by next of kin of the late Patrick Monahan of Charlestown as a result of signatures attached to his alleged will, which was filed for probate and disposed of an estate valued at $300,000, was intimated by counsel in the Probate Court, when Judge Grant stated that unless the proponents produced John T. Murphy, an alleged witness of the will, before next Tuesday, he shall disallow the instrument.

Since the matter first came up Murphy's address was given as No. 15 Broad street, New York. A personal investigation by John H. Casey, counsel for Mr. Monahan's heirs, failed to locate Murphy, and an affidavit from Henry Clews & Co., the bankers, at No. 15 Broad street, says that no such man was ever employed in the building. Attorney Casey and detectives interviewed every John Murphy whose name appears in the New York directory.

Counsel for the proponents stated that it had just been learned that Murphy had been living with a family in New York that had changed its residence half a dozen times in the past five years, and urged further time to verify this information.

WELLESLEY GIRL SCULPTOR'S BRIDE

NEW YORK, May 20.—Announcement was made here that Gutson Borglum, the New York sculptor, and Miss Mary Montgomery of this city were married at the residence of Rev. Marshall Montgomery, the bride's brother, at Short Beach, Ct. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Montgomery, assisted by Rev. T. F. Munger.

"THE HOUSE NEXT DOOR," a thrilling story of love, envy, race hatred and ambition that will interest the young and old alike, novelized from J. Huntley Manners's drama of the same title, begins in next SUNDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN. Don't miss the opening chapters.

MRS. BEN TEAL ILL; IN JAIL HOSPITAL

NEW YORK, May 20.—Mrs. Ben Teal, who is serving one year in the penitentiary for subornation of perjury in the divorce proceedings of Mrs. Frank J. Gould, was defendant in City Court, Part II., for an alleged attack upon her colored maid, Sarah Daniels, who claims $2,000 damages. On request of Martin Zarulove, Mrs. Teal's counsel, the case was put over until the October term. He explained she was "unable to be present on account of illness."

Mrs. Teal is in the hospital ward at present, suffering from a slight attack of grippe and pneumonia.

FIND LAW TO GET AT PORTAL

The members of the Joint Committee on Public Lands of the City Council are confident that they have found a law under which they can compel Major John M. Portal, of the 5th Artillery, National Guard, and others to reveal what they know about the scandal of the purchase of the Woburn Range property, which is under investigation.

Major Portal, who in 1901 recommended to the city government the purchase of the land for $25,000, when it was assessed for only $7,800, and actually cost those who sold it to the city about $3,000, has time far refused to state under oath what he knows about the transaction.

The joint committee now proposes applying to the Superior Court for an order requiring Major Portal to testify. Here is the law relied upon:

Chapter 175, section 10, revised laws: "A justice of the Supreme Judicial Court, or of the Superior Court, upon application of a tribunal which is authorized to summon, but not to compel, the attendance of witnesses and the giving of testimony before it, may in the discretion compel the attendance of such witnesses and the giving of testimony before such tribunal."

The committee will also try to compel Treasurer H. C. Eames of the Lottingwell Land Company, and Cashier Arthur W. Rose of the Metropolitan National Bank to testify.

"TOO MANY FADS IN THE SCHOOLS"

That there are too many fads and fancies in the public schools to-day is the declaration of Representative David B. Shaw. He made this statement at a meeting of the Charlestown Improvement Association last night.

"During the past twelve years," he said, "the money for the public schools in the city has not been spent as judiciously as it should have been, and the graduates of the grammar schools are not as well fitted to go out into the world to-day to earn their living as were the graduates twenty-five years ago."

SUICIDE FEARED TO OUTLIVE HUSBAND

PROVIDENCE, May 20.—Mrs. Clara Cook, forty-seven years old, wife of Ralph Cook, superintendent of the Providence Gas Company's South Station, committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas at her home in the Washington Park district.

Mrs. Cook said that the horror of outliving him, and had been worked by the statement of a clairvoyant to the effect that her husband would live but two years.

CHURCHES WAR ON "L" PLANS

The members of the Sacred Heart parish, Malden, and nearly every minister in the city are on record as opposed to the taking of the corner of Main and Centre streets for the terminal of the Malden extension of the elevated road.

Resolutions of protest against the decision of the Railroad Commission have been drawn up by ex-Councilor Alfred E. Cox, ex-State Senator Charles L. Dean and Attorney Charles R. Elder. They will be presented to the commission, who have indicated, it is said, that they will change their decision if it is contrary to the public.

The proposed terminal would necessitate the destruction of $200,000 in church property, consisting of the Cherubs school, the Sacred Heart rectory, and other buildings. The church, situated across the street, would be depreciated, it is pointed out, by the noise.

A meeting held in protest was presided over by Mayor Richards, who said that the decision of the commission was a great blow to Malden. The Rev. T. J. Hally declared it a great injustice to rob 4,000 citizens of $200,000 worth of property.

BEVERLY MAN IN PATH OF ENGINE

BEVERLY, May 20.—While lying on the spur track of the Boston & Maine railroad running through Water street to the plant of the Gulf Refining Company, Edward Buckley from Rantoul street had a narrow escape from being killed.

The engine, going at a slow rate of speed, was not more than ten feet away when Buckley was discovered on the track by Captain C. A. Stone, who was waiting ahead of the engine to see that everything was clear. Buckley was sent to his home.

ARE THERE NO WIVES IN HEAVEN?—Every reader of the Bible, every believer in a hereafter, should read this article in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

OLD GLORY ORDERED DOWN IN OTTAWA

OTTAWA, May 20.—Actually within the Parliament building itself, a large American flag was displayed.

The individual in charge of the decoration of the hall where the Austrian press delegates were entertained at lunch by the Hon. Frank Oliver, draped the Stars and Stripes over the entrance in the most prominent place.

Some of the members of Parliament sighted the invader and the flag was removed forthwith.

"ELIJAH" SEES WORLD'S END

SHILOH, Me., May 20.—"Elijah," Frank Sandford, founder of the Holy Ghost and Us Bible School, is coming home after preaching the gospel for every nation, and he sees warning that the world is likely to come to an end in at any moment. He predicts that the world's end will happen no later than September 15 next. He is expected here on July 4.

Mr. Sandford has been around the world since he departed about two years ago, while an investigation of conditions at Shiloh was being made by the Maine legislature. His followers say that he doesn't fear proceedings in the courts.

Mr. Sandford wrote minute instructions for the celebration of his return on Independence day. The entire tabernacle is to be given a coat of white paint, to cost not less than $1,000, it is estimated. A carpet, said to have cost $150, has been bought to help furnish a large and luxurious room for the "Great Overseer King" as the "prophet's" followers call him, and a costly bed of the finest Shiloh linen is being made into a swimming pool for children. A large white flag inscribed "Victory" floats from the tabernacle flagpole.

SCHOOL BAND TO PLAY.

The next entertainment for the City Point Anti-Cigarette League, consisting of over 2,000 boys from the Lincoln, Oliver Hazard Perry and Thomas N. Hart schools, will be held in the latter building, corner of Fifth and Dorchester streets, Monday afternoon. There will be a concert by the brass band of the Thomas N. Hart School.

Always At A Sacrifice

OPEN TONIGHT TILL 9

No one ever paid half as much for a new piano here, no matter what make, as it would cost them at any retail piano house in New England—We don't pretend to make our profits out of the sale of pianos—If our income came only from this source the Piano Trust would have driven us to the wall and put us out of business long ago—Our other interests cannot be damaged in the slightest by the Trust—They can fight us only in the piano department of our business—Our fighting fund may not be as large as that of the Piano Trust, but we have a more effective weapon with which to battle than the "Combine," and that is the Cut, No-Profit prices that we put on Trust Pianos.

Some Very Fine Bargains This Week

Exceptionally good—Many beautifully made pianos which have been slightly used will be sold at very low prices, lower than usual—They have been put into the best condition by our piano experts and are fully guaranteed—These, together with a lot of fine new pianos, will be sacrificed—If you don't get the piano bargain of your life here this week blame only yourself.

$5 Down—$1 a Week

The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the car line to look around a little—go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

LABOR

Cigarmakers' International Union of America in its statement of benefits paid out in twenty-two years and two months ending April 30, 1909, has been loosed to traveling members, $1,191,907 paid out in strike benefits, $2,722,488 paid in sick benefits, $2,126,878 in death and total disability benefits and $1,139,000 in out-of-work benefits, making a grand total of over $7,000,000.

Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers held a midnight session, devoting nearly all its entire session to a discussion of a local trade grievance. A special meeting will be held next Tuesday in Venetia Memorial Building by the convention committee to consider entertainment plans.

Building Laborers Local Union No. 7, Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers and Carpenters and Joiners of Hyde Park Hall, instead of the following day, because of Memorial Day.

Electrical Workers No. 103 did not adjourn until after 12. A local trade grievance took up the time of the session.

Hyde Park Hall was the scene of play at match game of ball to-day with a picked team from the Children's Hospital Company of the American League grounds.

JOHNSON FAILS TO KNOCK OUT JACK O'BRIEN

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

KETCHELL, JEFF AND CORBETT WRITE OF FIGHT

STANLEY KETCHELL TELLS OF JOHNSON-O'BRIEN FIGHT

"JOHNSON A FROST, I CAN WHIP HIM," SAYS MIDDLEWEIGHT

Stanley Ketchel, the only man who is credited with scoring a knockout over Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, and the next in line to try to wrest the honors of champion now held by Jack Johnson, was a spectator at the O'Brien-Johnson bout in Philadelphia, and he sizes up the "Black Champion" as a "frost." Here is his story of the fight:

By STANLEY KETCHEL, Champion Middleweight of the World.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—After seeing Jack Johnson perform with Philadelphia Jack O'Brien I think I have more right to assert the title of heavyweight champion of the world than Johnson. The big colored man tried everything he knew to knock O'Brien out and he ended by trying everything he knew to keep O'Brien from tearing him to pieces with straight left jabs.

Johnson showed more aggressiveness in his bout with O'Brien than he has ever shown in a ring. He started off to sling O'Brien off his feet in the first round, but Jack straightened him up with short arm uppercuts and straight jolts to the head and jaw and Johnson deliberately stopped

Johnson Dazed in Third.

I am very glad that I will have a chance at Johnson on October 12, at Coffroth's Mission street arena in San Francisco. If I had him in the ring I would have certainly scored a knockout.

The fight proved two things and they are that Jack Johnson will stop under punishment and that he cannot hit. As a champion he proved a frost. He put all his strength into the few blows he landed on O'Brien, but they did not faze him.

In the third round O'Brien, who showed superior cleverness to Johnson, caught the colored champion a long arm right hand swing on the jaw, and for a moment Johnson was dazed. Johnson was worried and O'Brien poked him several straight lefts and jabs in the nose which took the smile off Johnson's face.

Johnson tried hard to land his famous left-hand lab on O'Brien, and Jack either countered nicely or danced out of harm's way.

Looked Like a Novice.

After the third round Johnson was content to let O'Brien do the bulk of the fighting, except when he summoned up courage enough to make a mad rush at O'Brien, which invariably ended in a harmless clinch, owing to O'Brien's cleverness.

What convinced me that Johnson cannot hit is that during the fourth round he caught O'Brien a clean left hook on the point of the chin and O'Brien did not wobble.

Whenever Johnson attempted to use his famous hook on O'Brien the Philadelphian generally stepped nicely inside and landed a short right hand jolt to the jaw.

At the start O'Brien had a mile the best of it. Johnson showed up to advantage in several rallies, but there were other times when O'Brien forced the big colored man to back up.

One of the noteworthy incidents was O'Brien's feinting. I had always thought Johnson clever, but O'Brien made him look like a novice.

Jack deliberately feinted Johnson into a knot several times during the contest. In spasms Johnson tried hard to overcome O'Brien's lead by throwing his blows from the smaller man and lashing out wildly with both arms. During these spells of fighting I noticed that Johnson's body was an open as the sky.

The middle rounds showed O'Brien's superiority. Once he walked right up to Johnson and feinted the big negro with his lighting left. Johnson rushed with his left hand hung low and his right loaded for a wallop. O'Brien suddenly shifted and landed a hard right hand smash at Johnson's stomach and the big negro had. He was hurt.

After looking at the fight I can see why Johnson won't fight no more than twenty rounds. However, I think that twenty rounds will be enough for me to bring back the title to the white race.

Of course I would like a longer distance, as Johnson might try to stall through the twenty with me.

Played Waiting Game.

Judging from my fight with O'Brien and O'Brien's fight with Johnson I cannot see where I can lose.

All I want is one or two good wallops at Johnson's mid-section or jaw and it will be Johnson's finish.

I am glad that my manager, Willus Britt, was shrewd enough to secure and bind Johnson with a $5,000 forfeit.

Being matched with Johnson I watched the fight very closely. I did not sit right down at the ring side, where the excitement run high, fleeving in mind that a calm, cooyful study of the tactics of both men would help me I sought a seat just close enough to see the facial expression of the men.

Johnson seemed to be laying for a chance to wale his right over on the chin and seemed willing to take a chance too at times.

Blows Lacked Steam.

Johnson tried hard to score, and once when he caught O'Brien with his left swing right on the point of the chin, I was surprised when O'Brien did not go out.

Again in the fifth round, which was Johnson's best, he caught O'Brien a right cross on the back of the head. It shook O'Brien up and Johnson tried to take advantage of the blow, but O'Brien went into a safe clinch.

These kind of blows would never hurt me. Of that I am thoughly convinced. If Jack O'Brien can make him stop slugging after eight rounds I can do it. Any good straight two-handed hitter can take Mr. Johnson into camp and I believe that I can do the trick.

His wind never bothered me, and the first time he makes one of those bull-like rushes at me I'll meet him to one side that you could throw a dog through.

THE FIGHT BY ROUNDS.

Round One.

Johnson rushed Jack to ropes and Jack clinched. Jack jabbed Johnson on the nose and then repeated. Johnson threw Jack to the mat and then dropped him with a left to stomach, but Jack was up in two seconds. Jack jabbed two lefts to face. Johnson was waiting for Jack to lead, and he ducked a straight left with ease. Jack put two lefts on face and then another. Johnson sent straight left to face and repeated. Jackson sent left to mouth and hooked left to face. Johnson blocked left swing for head and crossed right to jaw.

Round Two.

Johnson shot two rights to body and was warned for fighting on the break away. O'Brien jabbed left to face and Johnson swung to body. Johnson missed three fights to body and sent right to head. O'Brien put light swing on ear and Johnson shot left to ribs. O'Brien crossed right to jaw. O'Brien jabbed left to mouth and Johnson rushed him to ropes. They clinched and O'Brien jabbed left to ribs. Johnson ducked a left swing and O'Brien stabbed left to mouth twice. Johnson swung right to chest and they were in a clinch.

Round Three.

Johnson jabbed left to face and O'Brien two lefts to nose and hook left to ear twice. They clinched. O'Brien jabbed left to eye and Johnson whipped left to wind. O'Brien sent left to face, O'Brien put light left on eye and sent right to heart. Johnson sent right to head and O'Brien hooked left to mouth. O'Brien jabbed left to face and Johnson missed swings for the head. O'Brien swung left to neck and they were clinched at the bell.

Round Four.

O'Brien jabbed left to mouth and Johnson swung both hands to head. Johnson swung two lefts to face and O'Brien jabbed left to face. Johnson missed three left swings for body and O'Brien jabbed swift left to mouth. Johnson missed a vicious right swing for the jaw. Johnson sent right to heart and staggered O'Brien with right to ear. O'Brien jabbed left to face. O'Brien jabbed left to face a second time and then swung right to body. Johnson missed two left swings for body and then waited for O'Brien to lead. They were clinched at bell.

Round Five.

O'Brien jabbed left to nose and Johnson threw him to the floor. Johnson rushed O'Brien and shot four lefts to head and jaw. O'Brien swung to chest and put a light left on face. Johnson was blessed for his tactics. Johnson sent hard right to wind and O'Brien jabbed left to face. They exchanged left jabs to head and Johnson missed hard left for wind. O'Brien jabbed two lefts to face and then repeated. Johnson missed a right for the body and then jabbed left to face. O'Brien swung two lefts to head at the bell.

Round Six.

They shook hands gingerly and then clinched. Johnson jabbed left to face and then swung right to chest. O'Brien swung hard left to wind, and Johnson grabbed him around the ring, but missed with all his swings. Johnson put light left to face and each sent left to body. Both missed left swings to body, and O'Brien jabbed left to face. Johnson jabbed left to face, and upper cut right to chin. They exchanged right swings to head and O'Brien jabbed left to face. O'Brien put light left on face at bell.

CYCLONE BURNS AND WILLOUGHBY DRAW

Cyclone Burns and Walter Willoughby, two of the foremost light heavyweight wrestlers of the country, went three hours to a draw on the mat at the Columbia Theatre last night, neither man securing a fall. It was a fast contest with each man at all the way, neither man being able to hold the other down long enough to get a grip on him, which was very rarely. Burns did the forcing, but Willoughby resorted to his well-known stalling tactics, at which game he is a past master, and absolutely refused to take a chance. It was a winner take all affair, resulting from the draw of the previous week, and both men were wary of each other, and the result was a very tiresome match to watch. However the crowd stayed to the finish, hoping against hope for something to happen. At the end of three hours, with both men on their feet and no likelihood of a fall, the referee sent the men to their corners and declared it a draw. Willoughby said Burns was too heavy for him, and Burns said "I'll get him yet."

Saturday night Joe Hanson of Norwich, N. Y., and Sam Anderson of Norwood will meet in a return match. Winner take all. This will be for blood, as Anderson is out to retrieve himself for the defeat Hanson handed him a few weeks ago.

SCRAPPY CARD FOR FANEUIL HALL A. C.

A good semi-final has been added to the boxing card the Faneuil Hall A. C. will hold at its quarters, 40 Leicester avenue, Dorchester, tonight. Jackie Williams of Cambridge tackles Fred Chisholm of Everett. The main bout with Jimmy McCarthy of Chicago and Arthur Cote of Biddeford, Me., should be a bummer.

FAST AMATEUR BATTERY.

A good fast amateur battery can be secured by writing to Steve Kelly, No. 788 Broadway, Chelsea. This battery worked for the Bupotts of Charlestown last season but this team has not organized this year so the battery would like a position as soon fast team.

"COULD WHIP JEFF AS EASY," SAYS JOHNSON

By JACK JOHNSON.

I didn't fear the outcome of the battle a particle. I knew all the time that I was O'Brien's master, as I am of any man in the world.

All during the contest I could not help but wish that it was Jeff that I was administering the punching to instead of the Philadelphian, and I know that I could whip him every bit as easy. O'Brien put up a game fight though and I am not surprised that he gave Ketchel such a tough encounter recently.

OH THE MONKS THEY ALL WERE THERE !!

As Mager Viewed It.

"20 ROUNDS WOULD END JOHNSON," SAYS O'BRIEN

By JACK O'BRIEN.

The only thing I regret about the battle is that it wasn't a longer distance affair, for I feel certain that I could wear the negro down in say twenty rounds.

However, I must admit that Johnson is not quite as clever as he has been touted. He has every physical advantage over me, and of course that largely helped him to reach me with his long jabs. He was rather clever on his feet, but I could see where he was tiring toward the end.

JOHNSON IN NO SHAPE FOR O'BRIEN, SAYS TAD

By TAD.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Jack Johnson was just a bit too big and strong for Jack O'Brien in their bout at the National Club in Philadelphia. Whatever glory there was in the fight O'Brien should have, but he is too small altogether for the champion, who, sadly in need of training, stalled his way through the six rounds without barely mussing his hair, if we may squeeze that in.

O'Brien was in the pink of condition. Jack always was a faithful gent about the work stuff, but as for Johnson, he was as round as a barrel doll and his legs almost reminded one of Jack Munroe.

It's a pipe that Arthur will not lead the league long if he keeps taking chances with fellows in that sort of condition. It almost cost him the fight. His size and strength alone won out for him.

Like Fat Boy on Thin Ice.

Like the fat boy on thin ice, he was afraid to go out far. He had trained a few days, feeling that six rounds were only to go, and O'Brien, the love tap kid, would not be able to damage him to any extent.

In the last guess he was right, but in the others he was wrong. He was afraid to mix to hard for fear that his condition would go back on him and that he might die before the fight was over. He fearfully slow, he was out of form and made a sorry showing.

O'Brien did practically all of the leading, but there wasn't one good solid punch throughout. He stabbed and jabbed all the way. He was afraid of Johnson, and when he did lead he followed it up with a hug, fearing a mix or a return from the latter, who was vicious with his uppercuts, and quite generous.

O'Brien did the jumping-jack stuff in the early part of the go, and had Johnson guessing and flurried. The first round was a feeler. Neither did much except stall and feint.

O'Brien took the lead then, and jabbed Johnson to the nose two or three times, cleverly ducking returns, and when danger loomed up in a mix gently dopped to the floor and picked himself up in the centre of the ring.

He danced and jobbed some more, and then Johnson lashed out with right and left, expecting to find John there to receive the blows, but as per orders Jawn was foiled again. He was like a novice on skates.

He didn't seem able to hold his feet at all.

He was jabbing, though, and one out of every three landed, and that was more than Johnson had done until a mix near the ropes came off and Johnson charged a right over on O'Brien's jaw that looked like the goods.

O'Brien staggered and grabbed. He held on for dear life. Johnson swung in the air trying to break, but like a bad cold Jawn would not let go. The bell came to his rescue.

Close Call for Jawn.

The fourth came near being the end of Jawn the jumper. Johnson rushed him into a corner, whaling away with both hands, and O'Brien grabbed Artha around the neck trying to clinch. Johnson swung him around in the air and belted him three solid uppercuts in the stomach before the latter dropped to terra firma. He then missed a terrific right swing, which caused the crowd to howl with joy, and O'Brien to break into a smile.

In the fifth Johnson cornered O'Brien again, and started to pump them from both sides into the Quaker, but in the hottest part of the mix, strange to relate, Jawn tumbled again.

He was up in a jiffy, however, and hugged the dark gent once more. Johnson fed him lefts and rights and on their heels Jarred Jawn with right uppercuts.

JOHNSON IS A BIG LEMON SAYS CORBETT

By JAMES J. CORBETT.

The bout between Johnson and O'Brien resulted just as I anticipated, and proves conclusively my contention that the negro is the biggest lemon that ever gained ring honors.

Had he been a real champion he would have put O'Brien away within the prescribed six rounds, or at least shown such class as to prevent the possibility of the bout being called a draw.

With the great advantage of more than thirty pounds in weight and three inches in stature, had Johnson been of the calibre with which he is credited by many, he would have had the best of every round. Instead of that, so far as I am able to judge by the report of the fight for rounds, there was no time during the bout that the honors were not even or in favor of O'Brien.

I do not mean by this to detract from O'Brien's ability as a boxer, for he is an exceptionally clever man, but no one would consider him for a minute as near the championship class and taking everything into consideration, his work last night convinces me that Johnson will be an easy mark for the first good heavyweight that gets into the ring with him.

I said the other day that with Jeffries in anywhere near good condition, Johnson would not last six rounds with him. I now want to say that Johnson would not last two rounds with Jeff, and the chances are that he would go out in a punch.

Take his work last night. He knocked O'Brien down three times, but couldn't put him away because he didn't have the wallop to do it. He wrestled him about the ring and by sheer weight alone rushed him to the ropes a number of times, but the damage he did to the Philadelphia man amounted to nothing.

RED SOX'S GREAT RECORD ONTHE TRIP

How long can the Red Sox keep up the clip they are traveling? It is reasonable to expect that there will come a slump, because a slump comes to all teams, whether they are composed of veterans or youngsters.

But as long as luck gives Lake's men an even break, for luck is a big percentage in baseball, there is no cause for the Boston fans to worry.

Since starting out on their trip on May 5 the "Speed Boys" have won eight games and lost three, as follows:

	Won.	Lost.
With New York	2	2
With Cleveland	2	0
With Detroit	2	1
With Chicago	2	0

The way things are breaking, Lake's men ought to clean up in Chicago fully as well as they did in Detroit, and when they leave St. Louis the record there ought not to be less than an even break.

The problem that confronts Manager Lake is what to do with Doc Gessler now that the captain of the Red Sox has recovered from his illness and is ready for work again. Hooper has been doing such phenomenal work for the Red Sox that it would seem foolish for the manager to put him on the bench again.

Hooper did not show with any great brilliancy during the Spring training trip and none of the critics was very favorably impressed with him. It seems that he needed the smoke of the real battle to bring out his true worth, and the way he is playing at present has proved that he is one of the most valuable men on the team.

Then, too, if Thoney was "right" again, could Lake afford to put Speaker on the bench to make room for the Saint? Niles is a very speedy man and he is driving in runs with the best of them. He is also fielding his position in a first-class manner.

The chances are that Lake will continue his winning combination as long as it is a winning combination and only make the changes when the team takes a slump—if it ever does slump.

JOHNSON TO DICKER WITH AL KAUFMAN

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—Jack Johnson and big Al Kaufman, the Frisco heavyweight, are almost sure to meet in a six-round battle within a month. A challenge was read from the ring at the National Club to Johnson last night from Billy Delaney, manager of the big youngster from the coast. In it Delaney offered to match Kaufman with the champion for a long fight for $10,000 a side. It is expected that the matter will be settled this afternoon.

JEFF DECLARES BOUT A DEFEAT FOR JOHNSON

CHICAGO, May 20.—James J. Jeffries, retired and undefeated champion of the world, received the reports of the Johnson-O'Brien fight from the Examiner and dictated the following statement:

By JAMES J. JEFFRIES.

In my opinion the fight was a defeat for Johnson. While it probably will go down in the records as a draw or a no-decision affair the public is going to consider the go as a set-back for the champion.

Johnson calls himself champion of the world. He outweighed O'Brien over 40 pounds and set out with the avowed intention of stopping the Philadelphian in less than six rounds. He failed to do this and in so doing he was defeated in his purpose.

I think that Johnson made a very sorry showing for a man of his size and pretenses.

A real champion of the world—mind you, I never have said that Johnson was such—who is able to knock down an opponent forty pounds lighter than himself should be able to stop him.

I think Johnson should have put O'Brien away in two rounds or so, as the latter is very much of a has-been and never was a fighter of sufficient class to cope with a real heavyweight champion.

Johnson, it seems, landed on O'Brien hard enough to put him down. Why didn't he finish him? Because he didn't have class enough.

As I said before the fight, O'Brien was the better boxer, but lacked the punch. This was shown. It simply was a question of how long it would take Johnson to get home his wild punches. He got them home, but they did no good.

I am sorry that Johnson did not take the long count. The worst luck that I wished O'Brien was that he would knock the black champion's head off. I thought little of Johnson's claims to the championship before this fight, and I think less of them now.

MIRANDY ON MATRIMONY

"Ef You Marries Becaze You Is Got a Haughty Spirit Dat Needs to Be Humbled, Marriage Is de Biggest Success"

By DOROTHY DIX

"BEER JENKINS, what is my preacher, you know, axed me a mighty funny question last night. He axed me ef, in my opinion, marriage was a failure.

"'Dat depends,' I 'sponds, 'upon what you marry for. Ef you married becaze you thunk dat matrimony is a kind of trundle ob bliss where you is never gwine to be hongry no mo', an' nothin' is gwine to ris you, an' all you got to do is jest to set up an' have somebody hold yo' hand, an' tell you how good lookin' an' peart you is—ef dat is what you specs you is gettin' when you ties up in double harness wid some body, den marriage is shorely a failure.

"'But ef you marries as a means of grace, an' becaze you is got a proud an' haughty spirit dat needs, as de Good Book says, to be humble an' broke to save you from de wrath to come, den marriges is de biggest sort of a success.

"'Yassum; I'se been married to like nigh on to twenty years, an' purgatory ain't got no terrors for me. I'se had dat hot a time in de holy estate dat I specs dat even ef I went to de Hed Place I'd say to de little imps, "Would you mind chuckin' up de fire a little. I feels sort of chilly, not bein' acclamated yit to dis frosty climate."

"'Think dat I'se opposed to marriage. Naw'm. Far from bit. I'se in favor of bit. It's good for folks. Hit's lak dese brash bitter doses dat de doctors give people in de Spring of de year.

"Dey Done Had Dere Dose"

"'Dat's de reason dat widders an' widdowers is de smilingest an' de liviest people dat you ever meets up wid. An' dey's de amiablest an' de friendliest, too. De ole maids an' de bachelors, dey's most generally sour an' cranky, an' de married folks dey's cross an' grouchy. An' de reason of dat is dis—dey is done had dere dose of maternony, an' hit's kinder woked all de meanness out of dere systems an' left 'em feelin' good toward ev'ybody.

"'Co'se, ef anybody is progusticatin' dat maternony is a glory ticket to Heaven on dis yearth, dey better not fool wid hit. Case you's gwine to find out dat you don't know how many faults po', frail human nature has got, an' dat you is got de whole bunch of 'em, outil you gits married an' has de partner of yo' bosom call yo' attention to you' defects.

"'Nachally folks ain't perpared fer de rough side of maternony, because dere wouldn't be any maternony of dey was, an' so ev'y sassy young gal an' good lookin' young buck goes along lookin' fer ev'ythin' to be mighty rosy, an' dey dreams about love in a cottage widout ever castin' a thought towards twins an' de colic, an' de rent collector.

Hit's lak de little doses de doctors give—hard to swallow, but dat makes you feel spry when hit's over.

"'Den de man begin to find out dat he has to do extra jobs after wuk hours to keep meat in de pot, an' fuddermo' dat he is dat scared of de lovely, angelic creeter dat he is married to dat he takes off his shoes and climbs in de winder lek he was robbin' a hen roost when he comes home late at night.

"'An' de woman finds out dat what she has got out of maternony is de chanst to wuk ten times harder dan she ever did befo', an' de privilege of turnin' over de money dat she made takin' in washin' to a man what passes hit over de counter for red-eye whiskey dat makes him come home wo' box, and both of 'em figgers hit out dat marriage is a failure, an' nobody ain't got no call to throw no fits of surprise at hit.

"'De funny part of hit is, dough, dat nobody don't take no warnin' from 'em.

"'Yassum, marriage shorely does tek de vanity an' de spirit out of folks, but hit comes back when dey gits single again. De ver, just thing dat a widder or a widdower does after de funeral is over an' de mourners gone home is to go out an' buy 'em some good clothes.

"Wants to See Folly of Hit"

"'Howsomever, I'se one of dose dat believes what de Good Book says about marriage bein' a special providence for britezin' down de proud spirited, for de Lawd only knows what we'd be if ev'ybody was single, or He would tell us how to raise our chilren.

"'Caze hits de ole maids and de ole bachelors, what ain't got no troubles of dere own, what's got de time an' de probusness to run de universe.

"'Yassum, a woman what's got a house full of chilien to nuss, an' dress, an' cook an' wash for, lak I is, an' a husband dat she's got to keep her eye on to head him off from sashayin' around wid a lakly young woman wid a straight front figger an' a peach basket hat, tak Ma'y Jane Jones, ain't got no time to worry about de suppression of polygmy 'mongst de Sulus, nor whedder de Hottentots is got flannel petticoats or not.

"'An' a man what can't manage one pk' little measly woman dat he's married to, an' who is dat hoopecked dat he always says "Our pants," when he talks about his britches, ain't so all-fired shot dat he could run de country better dan dem what is doin' hit, so he jest sort of lets Mr. Taft rock along de best he can widout his advice.

"'Yassum, all de reformers dat ever I seed was ole maids or ole bachelors, or else dey married late in life, after dey got de reformin' habit, an' couldn't break dereselves of hit, but I done took notice dat de most rumbustious reformers after dey tackles maternony simmers down mighty nu' ain't nigh so certain dat dey knows hit all.

Temper: Learn to Control It.

It Has Caused Nine-Tenths of the Failures in Life.

By DOROTHY DIX.

THE other day a man wrote a letter to a newspaper in this city, asking if some one would tell him how to control his temper. He said that he realized that his temper was ruining his chances in life, and making his family miserable.

Excessive irritability is very often the result of disordered nerves, and in such cases a good doctor is the best person to appeal to. Otherwise, the only advice that any one can give an individual with a high temper, who wishes to control it, is just to control it.

High temper is nothing on the face of the earth but just rank, overbearing egotism and selfishness, a fury at having one's sovereign way or will balked, and the only thing that the high-tempered person needs in order to be able to control himself is just to forego the pleasure of indulging himself in flying into a rage.

Few Ashamed of Their Temper

This man's letter is interesting and unique, however, as being one of the few, if not the only, instance on record in which an individual with a high temper recognizes it as a vice instead of parading it as a virtue.

Every one of us has had some one grossly insult us, and then had the offending party bob up as smiling as a May morning and say, "You must not think anything of what I did and said the other day. I didn't mean it at all, but I have such a high temper."

Somehow, though, we aren't satisfied to offer ourselves as a sacrifice to his temper. We hate those who say disagreeable things to us in temper just as much as we hate those who say disagreeable things to us in cold blood. More, perhaps, because in anger, as in wine, there is truth.

When a man or woman gives way to temper the veil of policy is stripped away for an instant, and we see his or her naked soul, and know just how mean, and paltry, and bitter, and vindictive a thing it is—a little venomous snake, that is always coiled and ready to strike.

It is a strange thing how little attention our preachers and our moralists and our teachers of the young pay to this subject of temper, yet of all the vices it is the one that does the most harm in the world, because it is the most common.

It is responsible for more divorces than infidelity. It brings more sorrow into homes than drink. It wrecks more lives and brings more unhappiness upon innocent people than all other causes combined.

It is responsible for nine-tenths of the failures in life. Who are the people who never get along in business, who are always out of a situation and always looking for a new job? Almost invariably they are the high tempered.

All of us know individuals of positive genius who never succeed, and we wonder why so we see them outstripped in the race of life by those of far less talent. The answer is "temper."

As business men nobody was willing to go into partnership with them; as professional men they made enemies where they should have made friends; as writers they offended editors; as actors and actresses they were firebrands in a company that no manager was willing to risk, and so they paid with poverty, and bitterness of spirit, for the pleasure of flaming out in wrath over every trifle that did not suit them.

No matter how much a man loves a woman, to begin with, if she flies into a tempest of rage over every little thing he does, if there are scenes and recriminations when he comes home a little late, and if she flashes out hard speeches at him in her furies, he soon comes to dread and hate her.

They Make Bad Husbands

Nor does love survive the wounds that the high-tempered man deals it any more than it does the stabs that the woman gives it.

There is many a man whose wife lives in cringing fear of what he is going to say, whose children hush their prattle at the sound of the key in the door, and at whose coming the very cat takes to the cellar.

Well may the man ask how he can control his temper, he is the devil on our hearthstones, and we must throttle it or it will throttle us.

If Paris Lived To-day—By Nell Brinkley

No. 7—Would He Give the Apple "for the Fairest" to the Girl With the Madonna Face?

"It is the face of a woman who begins and ends always giving, of every kind of wealth she has."

PARIS shied pebbles at the little green, lipping waves fiddling over on the sand with a ruffle of foam, and watched them skip, pricking up the water as they ran.

On a lazy elbow he said: "I adore 'em all! Each one the best! Which is the fairest, will you tell me that?

"I like the sweet brown one with the naughty eyes and the hard, apple cheeks. I like the fair pale gold one, who pipes the kids away 'over the hills and far away', the dusky slim-faced one with purple black hair, and searching black eyes, and romance under the droop of her hair; the infantile one with the babyish hair, and the celestial china-blue eyes, and the snuggly way with her; the gorgeous, stirring one with the hair like a war helmet, wine-brown eyes and the secretive, gypsy way with her.

"All these I like, and many more I haven't got to yet.

"Those three scrapping goddesses were easy! First thing, they were only three; and next thing, they fought, and cared, and bribed! And these little girls put up their chins and go by me with proud little feet and clear, unconscious eyes, too proud to bribe, too unconscious of the fulness of their faces, or too sure to care.

"And to you, now—here's another! Will you have a Madonna with golden hair? Madonnas are dark women with velvet eyes and swarthy faces and dark hair—always! And this one is fair; but it is a perfect Madonna face, for it holds a capacity for the greatest suffering and love and understanding, of the kind that the perfect mother-woman can know.

"It's a girl face yet—so young, flawless, smooth like silk, unmarred; but it is the prophecy of feeling—deep, woman feeling. Maybe she won't ever marry any one; but she'll mother all the world around her, anyhow.

"Little children won't love her as they do that other worshipful idiot that pipes them over the hills. Maybe even, if she has any of her own, they'll cry out at her in childish anger. But when their noses are peeled, and their hearts ache, and they have 'the sorrows,' why, then, her breast will be warm and close and silent and 'home' for a convulsive little face—and the first place they fly to! And Grownups will wish they might put their tired faces there, too.

"It's the face of a woman who begins and ends always giving, of every kind of wealth she has—heart-wealth and body-wealth, the work of her hands, and her thoughts, and her money.

"And many times this face goes hungry. And it is a pity. It's a face that makes you remember your mother's face and how kind and divine it is behind its wrinkles and thoughtful eyes.

It's the kind of a face that registers every pain and delight. The dimple sinks deeper and goes into a wrinkle. The tenderness in the mouth corners droops into lines that mean compassion. The white-lidded eyes are the kind that sink deeper into the sockets and seem to draw up quiet and peace and love from their deeps into the broad lids. The whole face ages quickly, but grows tenderer, more exquisite with every year.

"Her hair is the rich gold, like the tracery on Venetian glass, smooth and glinty and thick. Her skin is transparent and white, like a thin skin of wax. Her brows and lashes are dark, with the gray tone of a thin shading of black. Her eyes are gray—pure, bright, steel-gray—without a hint of blue.

"There is no color in her cheeks; only a rose color in her gentle, softly folding mouth. The blue veins met under the skin at her temples and wrists. Her whole body and face give an effect of delicacy, but vigor, like a bright flame that is so frail and pure and slight, but so fiery and strong. In this you see it—her jaws are broad and strong, and yet all the blue veins show under her skin!

"Paint me one of a tall, white wax candle burning starlike in a dim cathedral, with a violet light staining the air from a high glass window. She has the quiet, the repose, the hush, the strength, the peace and goatleness, the humanness of God; the beauty, the frailty, of this—a white, burning candle in a cathedral. That phrase means many things. And she is like that."

Paris shied more pebbles and drew his face into thoughtful lines.

NELL BRINKLEY.

The AMERICAN is Boston's great home paper.

The Manicure Lady

Thinks That "Journal of a Neglected Wife" Is Real Swell Stuff

"HAVE you been getting that stuff in the AMERICAN about the diary of a neglected wife?" asked the Manicure Lady.

"I never read anything about neglected wives," replied the Head Barber. "I hear enough at home about the neglected wife stuff. So you really understand, kiddo, that I want no part of that neglected wife's diary stuff."

"It would do you good to read it, at that," said the Manicure Lady. "It is wrote in awful fine English, the kind of English that a girl likes to read when she is trying to improve her mind. Just think of it, George. The poor young wife, after having gave the best years of her life to her brute of a husband, feels in her heart that he is developing into a first-class cheat, and she ain't got anything to do but to hide in a corner with her little diary and pour out the sadness of her young heart."

"Maybe she wasn't a good cook," suggested the practical Head Barber. "Lots of homes have been wrecked by bad cooking."

Nothing Like "Cooking" in It

"This stuff is far above common things like cooking," said the Manicure Lady. "Listen to this: 'I am sitting alone to-night. Where be is I do not know, and the terrible knowledge that I do not care a rap comes stealing over me. I wonder, many a time and oft, as I wondered in my girlhood, how it matters, after all. Nothing matters now.' Ain't that swell, George?"

"I don't see anything swell about it," declared the Head Barber. "It seems like a dame writing because she has been left at the post. I think if you want to improve your mind evenings, any more than you get it improved around here daytimes, you ought to read something interesting, like 'Love Among the Mistletoe and Other Poems,' by James Elmore of Alamo, Indiana?"

"Is it nice poetry?" asked the Manicure Lady.

"It is the flossiest poetry I ever read," said the Head Barber. "Here is one of his poems, though I ain't sure that I can read it by heart:

"'It was bitter cold in the country,
And cold in the city, too,
The tramp was getting chilblains,
But what can a poor tramp do?'

One tramp, more brave than his fellows
Tried a loaf of bread for to sneak,
But all he got was a brutal exas
On the end of his frosted beak.'"

No Minor League Poets for Her

"'Well, George,'" said the Manicure Lady, "'that may be pure idea of poetry, but the kind I like is the works of all them old masters. I like 'Paradise Alley,' by Mr. O'Fanny, 'Oelen Joe,' by Lord Byron, and 'Lucy Gray,' by Henry Greenleaf Poe, and all that kind of songs. There is class to them ballads, George, plenty of it. You can't expect true poetry to be wrote by them minor league poets.'

"'Maybe you're right,' said the Head Barber. 'You and me, somehow, never seems to agree on literature.'

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MEET AT HOME.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm engaged to a young man two years my senior. I'm desperately in love with him and he says that my love is reciprocated. We meet occasionally once a week. On a few occasions I have told me that he thinks that I don't really want to meet him. Last time we met he said that if, after marriage, I wouldn't respect him as a husband he would not care about me any longer. These were words like torture to me and I'm thinking of them all the time.

What I would like to know from you is: What do you think of them?

G. B. C.

I DON'T know what he means. Why shouldn't you respect him as a husband if he treats you properly? Do not bother about what he says; perhaps he means that he wants to hold your love after marriage. I would suggest that you meet in your home instead of outside; it would give you in a much better light.

A HARD THING TO DO.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man, twenty-six years old, am working and am dearly in love with a young woman six years my senior. The doctors say I am very delicate, but I work steadily and get $18 a week.

Should I keep this girl's love or should I break off my engagement with her on account of my illness. But to live without her I believe would kill me.

S. R.

IT would be a very hard thing to do, but I really think you should give her up, if you intend to some warmer climate and completely regained your health you might some day marry her, but it would hardly be right to ask her to wait very long. I am very sorry for you and wish I could give you more cheering advice.

AN INTERFERING SISTER.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

After leaving a girl friend's house, last night, I was escorted home by two gentlemen friends. Standing by the door for about five minutes, we heard an angry voice summoning me upstairs, calling me by my full name, which I resent greatly. Thinking it was my mother, I went upstairs, having told the boys good-night, to find it was my sister. Kindly advise me of the boys' feelings, and if you think I should apologize, as I feel very much offended. It was after 10 o'clock when I was coming home. READER.

I DO not think you need apologize to the boys, but you might tell them that it was your sister and not your mother who called you. Tell your sister that she must not interfere in your affairs. As long as your mother does not object she has no right to interfere in any way.

FINISH YOUR TERM

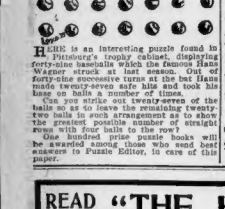
DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man of twenty-five years, and I am in love with a very sweet girl. I am in the United States Marine Corps for a term of four years. This girl loves me very much. She has a sum of money, and her father and mother like me very much. They want me to run away from the the Marines and marry the girl. Can you make a good living on the outside for her. Please advise me whether to run away or stay.

D. E. R.

I THINK you had better finish your term honorably instead of running away. You would always regret it if you ran away, and the girl would have little respect for you. If you cannot afford to marry until your term is up, perhaps the girl will be willing to wait for you.

What Was Wagner's Batting Record?



THERE is an interesting puzzle found in Pittsburg's trophy cabinet, displaying forty-nine baseballs which the famous Hans Wagner struck at last season. Out of forty-nine successive turns at the bat Hans made twenty-seven safe hits and took his base on balls a number of times.

Can you strike out twenty-seven of the balls so as to leave the remaining twenty-two balls in such arrangement as to show the greatest possible number of straight rows with four balls to the row?

One hundred prize puzzle books will be awarded among those who send best answers to Puzzle Editor, in care of this paper.

Kate Likes Him, but —Oh, Piffle!

By KENNETT HARRIS

TO see him coming makes me swear;
Just now he's opening the gate.
It really does seem hard to bear
To have that fellow rushing Kate.
He's not the kind that I would slate
For son-in-law, that much I know.
It seems to me unfortunate
Kate rather seems to like him though.

OF course it is the girl's affair,
She has the right to choose her mate;
I'd not induce her to despair
By kicking out the little skate.
And maybe he'll turn out first rate.
I ought to give the lad a show;
I think him quite inadequate;
Kate rather seems to like him though.

I HATE the way he smashes his hair,
His gaudy necktie, too, I hate.
The starling clothes he likes to wear,
Upon my nervous system grate.
The merest balderdash he'll prate—
At least it strikes a parent so—
Too bad if he's my daughter's fate!
Kate rather seems to like him though.

L'ENVOI.

Good sir, know you some featherweight,
Who pines you vickings in your toe?
This thing takes awful risks of late—
Kate rather seems to like him though.

FICTION

THE JOURNAL OF A NEGLECTED WIFE

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

Copyright, 1909, by R. W. Dodge & Co.

Midnight.

"THE days when you were not—did they trouble you? The days when you are not shall trouble you only as much."

That phrase has been with me all day. Oblivion—oblivion—would it mean only that? Cessation from suffering—oblitteration of all things?

The woman who threw herself under that elevated—has she that now? Has she found the peace, the rest, the oblivion she sought, or is there no escape—must she still work out her destiny?

December 10th.

TWO letters! Two letters! One dated yesterday and one five days ago! By some mistake it had been mislaid in the general delivery.

This morning, instead of the usual "Nothing," the man handed me two envelopes. My heart stood still as I saw him take them from the box and come toward the window.

I did not wait to hear his explanation as to why one had been delayed—I caught them up and almost ran out of the building and across the crowded street.

The building, the traffic, the people, the sunshine, the whole world, seemed transformed.

I could have cried aloud with joy—hysterical joy. And then I found myself saying: "If I can wait—if I can keep from opening them until I reach my room. If I read them now, they may be cold and bitter."

As a child I used often to make some such bargain with fate, bribing her, as it were, by some great self-control, some sacrifice, to give me what I longed for. It has been years since I had such a thought, but now I clung to it with superstitious belief. I would force myself to wait until I reached my room.

All the way to Brooklyn I held the letters before me, turning them over and over, examining the postmarks, trying to wrest something of their contents from the way they were addressed. "Mrs. H. L. Kempton"—how strange that name looked in his writing!

There was a blot on the last envelope—did that mean anything? And the stamp was not carefully placed—could that mean he was anxious and worried? He had not written at any length; each of the envelopes held but one sheet of paper. What did that imply?

When at last I reached my hotel room, my trembling fingers could hardly unlock the door. What would the next few moments bring?

I tore open the first envelope and drew out the letter. Then I turned my face away. It meant so much—my whole future depended on that note—I was afraid—afraid to read it!

I threw myself on my knees by the bed and murmured an incoherent little prayer. I had suffered so much, would God let this letter help me, and not let it make me suffer more?

And then I read these two letters—I pin them in here:

December 5th.

Dear Mary—You have asked me not—to try to find you, and I am respecting that wish. But you must write me at once where you are and let me come for you. I know you have not been well for some time. I am arranging my business so when you return we can go away for a little rest and change. I am sure it will help you. I shall look for a message tomorrow. As ever.

HORACE.

December 6th.

Dear Mary—I have been waiting anxiously for some word. If I do not hear from you by the end of the week I shall no longer feel bound by your request, and shall make every effort to find you. You must know I cannot let you remain away like this. As ever.

HORACE.

Later.

The notes are cold and colorless. They ignore entirely the promise which I made the condition of my return, and I know now that I, too, must ignore it.

So many conflicting emotions have possessed me since I tore open these notes a few hours ago.

At first I was conscious only of joy—joy that they gave me, at least, a pretext to go back; and I wrote a long, emotional letter, in which I poured out my love and longing to see him, and something of what I had suffered here. But when I compared it with his brief, unsympathetic notes, I saw how impossible it would be to send.

Then I wrote another, and still another, each more subdued, less emotional, than the last, but still I tore them up.

And then came the desire to make him say more, either by reminding silent, or writing without giving my address to increase his anxiety, perhaps even his love, for we sometimes grow to love again the thing we are about to lose.

And so I wrote, saying briefly that I could not return to the conditions I had left, and there had been nothing in his notes to assure me that they would be different.

But I could not send this; I had not the courage. It would mean more days of anguished uncertainty, and I have suffered too horribly here; I am afraid—afraid to stay.

Let the conditions be what they may, I must go back.

So, after spending two hours in writing and rewriting letters only to tear them up, I ended by sending this one-line note and hotel paper:

"I am here at this place, under the name of Mrs. R. L. Kempton."

CHAPTER XI.

December 12th.

HOME—home! Oh, the dearness, the precious familiarity of it all!

I have kissed every piece of furniture in my room, even the wallpaper and the curtains.

I feel as though I wanted to caress everything in the house.

This morning, after Horace had gone to the office, I went all over the house, simply touching things, greeting them, as it were, after my absence.

My dear little French clock sat on my desk, silent and sad. As I took it from its leather case I thought of my heartsick fear that I would never wind it again. How cheerfully it started ticking!

I am sure we were not unhappy when they are silent; they must feel there is nothing more restless than a silent clock.

Oh, how good it is to feel that my place is here; that I have been needed and missed!

Ellen is beaming; she cannot do enough for me. It seems that Horace told her I had been called away to a sick relative. (But I believe she suspects the truth. How she is very loyal, though, and devoted to me; I have no fear that she will gossip.)

Persis has been following me all morning, rubbing against my dress and purring exuberantly, not leaving me for a moment, as though she was afraid I might go away again.

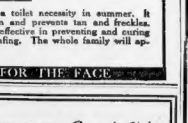
And yet how trivial are all these details! The one great thing, the thing that makes my heart leap with joy, is that Horace is glad to have me back. He is not demonstrative, as he says, so many years ago, but in a quiet, subdued way he is glad. Oh, I know what I can tell!

I feel so safe, so secure, now that I am in my home. Outside, the memory that I was born in Brooklyn seems infinitely far away. I cannot realize that this time yesterday I was there; it seems like months, or even years ago, or even more, like some bad dream.

Well, I am so happy just now! It has been so long since I have been happy that I cannot quite realize it. Perhaps I shall, to-morrow, when I have been happy for a few days, but I am not going to think about them desperately, to keep them from slipping away.

(To be continued to-morrow.)

Woodbury's Facial Soap preserves the skin and tones the complexion. It is a perfect toilet soap yet essentially a face soap.



The daily use of Woodbury's Facial Soap brings a wealth of health and beauty to the skin. Blemishes that cloud the complexion are made to vanish by its cleansing and sanative qualities.

WOODBURY'S FACIAL SOAP is strictly antiseptic, soothing and healing. It is best for use in the nursery to guard the tender skin of the children. It insures for them a faultless complexion in later years.

WOODBURY'S FACIAL SOAP is made from the formula of the famous dermatologist and meets every requirement of skin health. It is more than mere soap because it contains the greatest antiseptic known to science. Disease cannot attack the skin that is bathed daily with Woodbury's Facial Soap.

WOODBURY'S FACIAL CREAM is a toilet necessity in summer. It instantly relieves the sting of sunburn and prevents tan and freckles. Woodbury's Facial Cream is especially effective in preventing and curing all summer rashes, prickly heat and chafing. The whole family will appreciate its healing qualities.

DRAMA

To-night the performance at the Majestic Theatre will be a souvenir occasion. It will celebrate the 5,000th Sothern performance of "Lord Dundreary."

James J. Corbett and his company are pleasing big audiences at the Orpheum this week in "A Thief in the Night." The whole show is strong and interesting.

Three more nights will close the season at the Hollis Street Theatre where "The Golden Butterfly" is the opera with Grace Van Studdiford as star.

In "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," at the Tremont, May Robson has an American play which provides her with a strong part and pleases the public.

"A Stubborn Cinderella" is a genuine success at the Colonial Theatre and the company is of the finest selection. The music is exceptionally good.

Next week the John Craig stock company will present "The Gelaha," and another big success is expected by those who have seen "The Runaway Girl" there.

The Harvard-Princeton game is a feature of the picture show at the Bijou Dream this week.

Following Fight Pictures.

The Summers-Britt fight pictures are attracting the attention of all followers of the finite sport. They are being shown at the Howard.

Valerie Bergere and her clever supporting players are at Keith's now, besides some of the best vaudeville artists before the public. It is a strong entertainment throughout.

Chauncey Olcott's new songs are all winners. He is singing them in "Ragged Robin" at the Boston Theatre. The Lambs have a star gambol there Tuesday night.

Business at the Park Theatre where the "Traveling Salesman" is on its second month's run, shows how much the public appreciate the really clever comedy.

The Hub Theatre bill for the week includes Louis Simon, the Great Dubois and Skinner and Woods. It is one of the best shows of its kind in town.

The Pops are more popular than ever this season and no better concerts of their class have ever been given by Symphony Orchestra players. The programme is a pleasing one every night.

There is dancing every evening at Cordi's Summer ballroom at Revere Beach. The orchestra there is famous for its playing of dance music.

Variety of Offerings.

The play at the Bowdoin Square Theatre at present, "Lucky Ranch," together with the moving pictures, makes a show that is sure to draw a crowd.

The bill at the Gaiety Theatre is one of the most attractive burlesque entertainments which has appeared there since the new house opened.

The Columbia Theatre performances this week are given by the Innocent Maids Company. There are many pretty girls and clever comedians.

Moving pictures and vaudeville continue to please the patrons of the Globe Theatre. There are strong attractions in both lines there now.

Under Anesthetics

NIKOLA TESLA, the man who harnessed Niagara, was talking to an interviewer about inventors.

"The successful inventor," said Mr. Tesla, smiling, "has an odd, quaint mind, a mind full of surprises. Thus Smethurst, I am convinced, was an inventor at heart, though circumstances had made a grocer of him.

"Smethurst, during his seaside holiday, was seen upon the boardwalk with a large bottle under his arm.

"Chancing to meet an acquaintance, 'what have you got in that bottle that I see you carrying about with you day and night?' he asked.

"'Chloroform,' said Smethurst.

"'What the deuce are you doing with chloroform here on the boardwalk?'

"'That big dub of a Jones,' said Smethurst, 'had advertised to give me a sound thrashing the first time he meets me, and as soon as I see him coming I'm going to take a good dose. I don't propose to suffer if I can help it.'"—Philadelphia Record.

SOCIETY

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Rose with its brides and roses will soon be here and already the hint of gossip assist the trousseau, the bridesmaids, the ushers and the many happy affairs incident to the all important occasions are being whispered about from one pink tipped ear to another or openly discussed at tea and dinner, the feminine element of the smart set congregates.

Yesterday I was told by a pretty bride-to-be whose happy affair came dangerously near to a sad, sad ending. It has been such a pretty romance too, that my heart sank way, way down when I heard of it.

They've been playmates ever since their baby days, she's a beauty, wealthy, aristocratic, charming but—independent—when? And that was why it all happened.

They both ride, they both drive and both are equally fond of out-door sports. So up in the air of her debut, two years ago, they were considered merely good chums, but he went away for a while after graduating from Harvard and came back to find her blossoming forth amid the gayest of debutante festivities and with admirers by the score—all of whom she treated alike with a sweet indifference which set even the coldest pangs—ing if it could be possible that such a sweet, winsome creature could be heart-less.

But from the moment of her future husband's appearance on the scene, things were different, and she then entered into him and soul into the gayeties of the season, which up to this time had only served to weary her.

They shortly began going about together unchaperoned, and then—society had then engaged. But the announcement was not made for months—yes, nearly a year after—for her handsome suitor decided that she was too young to marry and that there was no hurry.

He was persistent, however, and won out, and the wedding was set for early June. Then came the miserable little difference. He objected to her riding and driving with his cousin, who was visiting in town, during his absence on business, and she declared that she would ride and and with whomsoever she chose—and it was all off.

But, joy of joys, somehow they have come to an understanding and are as happy together as ever, and preparations for the wedding, which could be suspended for a time, are going on apace, and everybody's happy.

I didn't learn how the reconciliation came about—that seems to be known only to themselves—but it came, and that is sufficient. I met her on Boylston street looking handsomer and more radiant than ever, and in response to her happy "good morning," I unconsciously breathed a sigh of thanksgiving, for I knew the moment I saw her that all was well.

Dr. Chandler Robbins of Beacon street is leaving town for Cincinnati, where, on June 15, he is to marry Miss Laura Fowler of that city. By Robbins will be accompanied by Dr. Wyman Whittemore and Dr. Roger Irving Lee, who will act as ushers at the wedding.

Immediately after the marriage Dr. Robbins and his bride will sail from New York for Europe and will spend the Summer touring the continent, returning to Boston to reside in the late Fall.

Dr. Robbins is one of the best-known of Boston's younger bachelor club men. He is a Harvard, '99, man, and member of the University, Oakley, Country and Union Boat clubs. His brothers are Dr. William Bradford Robbins of Commonwealth avenue and Thomas Hinckley Robbins of Beacon street who were classmates with him at Harvard. It is said that this is the only known instance at Harvard where three brothers received their diplomas on the same commencement day.

Is It True That Humanity Is Thus Divided?

We Think Not, but It Is an Interesting Suggestion

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

Here is something for readers to talk over and think over.

An ingenious Englishman has recently coined the following description of human beings.

He says:

"There are two categories of instinct and conduct. One includes the men who do what is right without knowing it, and know what is wrong without doing it. The other, those who do what is wrong without knowing it, and know what is right without doing it."

That is an ingenious definition, is it not?

It is worth thinking over and analyzing, in an unoccupied moment, in a street car, for instance. To take some one thing and think about it is better exercise for the brain than to wonder where the lady opposite got the hat.

It IS undoubtedly true that millions of human beings "do what is right without knowing it." And they do what is right without thinking about it, or bragging about it, or making any fuss over it. There are thousands that automatically risk their lives to save a life. They do not have to think about it—the character in them pushes them forward. There are tens of millions of mothers and there have been thousands of millions, that have sacrificed their lives and everything to the care of their children. They haven't thought about it, they haven't realised it; they have simply been too happy to do it.

And luckily, also, for the world, there are many who know what is wrong, WITHOUT DOING IT. There are millions of men who realize the falseness of the pleasures that lie in wrong conduct—and the moral realization is enough. They don't require experience to teach them.

Also, it is true that many do wrong without knowing it. Nearly all the evil in the world, COMES FROM IGNORANCE. The violent crimes have been the crimes of absolute ignorance. The miserable people in Asia, that for centuries encouraged young widows to burn themselves alive, were the vilest of brutes, but THEY DIDN'T KNOW IT.

The monsters of to-day that grind up the lives of children in their mines and mills and factories commit the most shameful of crimes. But they really do not actually KNOW WHAT THEY DO. They could not do it if they knew it. But the public ought to MAKE THEM KNOW IT, WITH JAIL AND STRIPES AND EVERY PUNISHMENT.

One of the most encouraging thoughts that can come into the mind is this: Evil is done by men that do not know they are doing evil. Absence of knowledge is evil. AND THEREFORE EDUCATION, KNOWLEDGE, CAN CONQUER EVIL IN THIS EARTH AND WILL CONQUER IT. There is encouragement for us all in that thought.

Is it true that large classes "know what is right without doing it"? We think not, and we hope not. Those that KNOW the right usually DO the right. For the intelligence and character capable of realizing the right distinctly and clearly also possess the qualities that tell them irresistibly to do what is right.

This Englishman, we think, has invented in a moment of smartness, as Englishmen do, an interesting phrase, worth thinking about and talking about.

Faithless Republicans; More Faithless Democrats

Two-thirds of the Minority in Treason to Their Party Promises

Governor John A. Johnson, the interesting Democrat who is Governor of Minnesota, has denounced the Aldrich tariff bill and declared that the Republican party, through its treason to its pledges, will lose the Middle West.

Governor Johnson seems to forget that the declarations of the Democratic party were more strongly in favor of a lower tariff than those of the Republican party. They were much more emphatic and definite. Compared with the Republican pledges, the DEMOCRATIC PLEDGES WERE VIVID. The Democrats declared practically for a TARIFF FOR REVENUE ONLY, which went far beyond anything that the Republicans promised.

Yet on the question of the iron ore schedule the other day, eighteen of twenty-seven Democratic Senators voted for the high tariff on iron ore. It was an act truly ironical. Here is the roster of ironically faithless Democrats:

Eighteen—Count Them!

(1) JOSEPH F. JOHNSTON, Alabama.
(2) JOHN H. BANKHEAD, Alabama.
(3) JAMES P. TALIAFERRO, Florida.
(4) DUNCAN U. FLETCHER, Florida.
(5) ALEXANDER S. CLAY, Georgia.
(6) AUGUSTUS O. BACON, Georgia.
(7) T. H. PAYNTER, Kentucky.
(8) SAMUEL D. M'ENERY, Louisiana.
(9) MURPHY J. FOSTER, Louisiana.
(10) WILLIAM J. STONE, Missouri.
(11) GEO. E. CHAMBERLAIN, Oregon.
(12) F. M. SIMMONS, North Carolina.
(13) BENJ. R. TILLMAN, So. Carolina.
(14) JAMES B. FRAZIER, Tennessee.
(15) ROBERT L. TAYLOR, Tennessee.
(16) JOSEPH W. BAILEY, Texas.
(17) JOHN W. DANIEL, Virginia.
(18) THOMAS S. MARTIN, Virginia.

This weird performance shows a larger proportion of Democrats in the Senate giving the lie to the declarations of their platform than of Republicans contradicting their platform.

In fact, the radical (or rather the trustworthy and honorable) wing of the Republican party is larger proportionately than in the Democratic party.

Will Governor Johnson please tell the people what kind of tariff reform party the Democratic party is when TWO-THIRDS OF ITS REPRESENTATIVES in the Senate vote AGAINST TARIFF REFORM?

Will Governor Johnson please explain by what logic he imagines that when the Middle West revolts against Republican rule, because that rule is faithless, it is going over to the worthless camp of the more FAITHLESS DEMOCRATIC PARTY? It would be jumping out of the frying-pan into the fire.

The Democratic party, as this newspaper has often said, is as venal as the Republican party, as corrupt as the Republican party, as subservient to the corporations and as traitorous to the people as the Republican party. It is merely CHEAPER in its price and MORE CONTEMPTIBLE in its methods.

If anything could render this flop of the Middle West predicted by Governor Johnson ridiculous and impossible, it is this Democratic treason to Democratic promises in regard to the tariff.

If any touch of self-inflicted satire on the Democratic party were needed it is contained in its platform, which pompously asserted that the Republicans could not be trusted in revising the tariff.

"We are the only genuine and trustworthy revisers!" said the Democrats.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By William F. Kirk

WHEN Pa calm hoam last nite he was carrying a big black book. It was black on the outside, but all of the paiper was white inside. There wasent any printing in it.

Well, sed Pa, I suppose you want to see this book. It is wat is called a diary, sed Pa, & I am going to mail you a present of it.

Oh, how sweet of you, sed Ma. Now I can start a diary & call it The Journal of a Neglected Wife, like the story in the Amerikun. Is that wat you are going to use it for? sed Pa. Then I will keep it & use it myself, Pa sed. Then Ma promised that she wuddent rite anything about Pa. Then Pa went in the library & this is wat he rote:

May 13, 1909. I am alone tonite, & stranigely sad & pensive. The moon is riding ser-ked, riding on a silver chariot of goalden clouds? Wait a minnit, sed Ma. How can a moon ride on a silver chariot of goalden clouds? If you are going to have a diary, sed Ma, why doant you rite sense? Why doant you pull sum reel literature, sed Ma.

I thought I was riteing this diary, sed Pa. I was reading a diary the other day by a lady name Pa sed, & she sute knew how to rite that kind of doap. Now let me go ahed & rite wat I have rittin, sed Pa. & Pa red this:

I am alone tonite, as I sed above. The moon is riding on a silver chariot of goalden clouds. How majestik the moon is. I have never saw a moon so majestik. As I sit here, riteing in my diary, I seem to see things in their true pro-portions. There is now no longer no mystery to life. There is now nothing but peace, a sollum peace which broods o'er the hills & vales of this, our mortal world. How do you like that, sed Pa to Ma. It is absolutely on the frits, sed Ma. It lacks mear class than any thing to which I have ever listened to.

Pa was kind of mad wen Ma sed this, & he looked mad, too, but he kep on reding:

Sumhow, as I set here riteing in my diary, on this butiful thirteenth of May, I look into the vastness of the future & wonder at the vastness of it all, it is so vast. How do you like that? sed Pa.

Give me that last line eggsen, sed Ma, it is so good that I cent grasp it all at once. I look into the vastness of the future, sed Pa eggenn, & wonder at the vastness of it all, it is so vast.

Here is a other fine line, sed Pa. Sumtimes, wen I set thus & look into the future, it seems indeed gloomy. My wife, I sumtimes think, showers less of adorashun on me than she did in the olden golden days. Why is it, I wonder, that a man gives the best years of his life to his wife & then awakens to find that the appel of his happiness has ashes in the core like ded sea fruit. Ah, me, life is indeed a strainge pussell.

Well, sed Ma, is that wat you bought this diary for, to write whines in? Are you, after all, like all the rest of the men, always ready to lay down and quit like a dog. Wait till I git a diary, sed Ma. I will have one (1) tomorrow & then you shall see wat a wife can rite. I will make yure tale of woe look like a happy song of childhood, sed Ma.

So tomorrow I am going to tell what Ma rote in her diary.

Notes by a Naturalist

By Wex Jones

WE are now camped by the Moogoogoo River. The country here is in its original savage condition, being more than five miles from the railroad.

The Moogoogoo is full of crocodiles. The crocodile is much maligned saurian. He is in reality an affectionate creature, being very fond of the natives, especially of their legs.

The old legend about crocodile tears appears to me based on some error. The crocodile never cries, even when sleeping by the edge of a river-side onion bed. It is also true, however, that the crocodile never smiles.

But he is wonderful at resting. He can rest for hours at a time without tiring—a feat beyond the reach of most human beings, who deem themselves so superior. Even an actor in the crocodile's inferior at resting. But, then, of course, the crocodile has no engagements whatever.

Natives report that a large lion's tracks have been observed near our camp. I told them to take their tomtoms and go out and chase the animal past a tree in which I perched with my rifle, but the cowardly fellows refused at first. However, they finally yielded to persuasion, applied by a stalwart soldier with a cudgel.

From reading I know a lion cannot climb a tree, so I felt cool as as the tomtoms began their din in the tall grass. Suddenly a large lion rushed out, and in the excitement of the moment I dropped my rifle and fell out of the tree.

With rare courage I climbed up again, and firmly remained there until the brute had disappeared.

From this personal observation I know that former writers have much underestimated the size of lions. This specimen appeared about eight feet in height and about the width of a street car. His teeth were eighteen inches long.

Undismayed by yesterday's harowing experience, I got up the tree again to-day and tied myself to a branch. The natives got on the job again, and again a large lion headed straight for the tree. As he approached the foot of my perch I began to think that perhaps the other hunters were wrong and that a lion could climb a tree, after all.

So I cut the lashing, intending to climb right to the top of the tree, but I was shaking so much—from malaria, probably—that I fell off the branch right on top of the lion.

When I came to I found myself running rapidly in the direction of the South Pole. A hester ran after me and turned me back.

The lion was dead!

I have been named Bungo Bango, "The Rotund Chief Who Kills Lions with a Bump."

Lions don't amount to much as game, so I'm now after rhinoceri. I have a good plan to avoid having the bullets turned by the thick hide. Each native will have a pneumatic drill, and when he comes across a rhino in the jungle he must drill through the hide.

Then I will risk my life by taking a shot at the animal, and if enough holes have been drilled, the bullet will go in a row.

Another plan I have is to use a screw and a screw-driver instead of a bullet. The rifle would give them a rotary movement and the screw would be driven right through the beast.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

PAINSTAKING AND ACCURATE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Previous to adjourning their business session of the eighteenth national convention the Daughters of the Revolution passed "a rising vote of thanks to the newspapers of Boston for their courtesy, fairness and the excellent and accurate report of the proceedings," but I feel I would like to supplement this with a personal word of appreciation for the good work that your men have done in reporting our meetings; they have been painstaking and very accurate, very gentlemanly and tactful. The AMERICAN has been courteous and generous to our organization and our members greatly appreciate it.

MARY ABBY PROCTOR,
State Historian, Massachusetts Daughters of the Revolution.

MAY IT CONTINUE TO GROW.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

It seems to me that the BOSTON AMERICAN is getting its full share of readers and business. May it continue to grow in its successful venture for news and as an organ defending the right, as I see it. In the interest for that which is best for the people.

MAX HENRY NEWMAN.

Rev. H. S. Nash Lauds The American

Lauding the editorial page of the BOSTON AMERICAN from the pulpit of the Temple Israel, Commonwealth avenue, as a great influence for peace, education and uplift all over the United States, the Rev. Henry S. Nash of the Cambridge Episcopal Theological School, a speaker at the peace services, declared that the press will greatly aid in bringing about universal peace.

"I read the Hearst newspapers, especially the BOSTON AMERICAN," Mr. Nash said. "I admire their democratic spirit and their striving for the welfare of the people. I consider that the BOSTON AMERICAN has the best moral tone and influence of any paper in the country. Its column of 'Letters From The People' is admirable. It gives the man of the street an opportunity to express his own opinions and to make public statements.

"Some people attack 'yellow journalism.' The so-called 'yellow' papers ought to be championed. They educate the people and advance the moral status of the country.

"Peace will never be brought about by simply preaching an ideal," the speaker continued. "The Anglo-Saxon realizes that no revolution is accomplished except by a great ideal and a practical force pulling together in double harness.

"The ancient Roman financiers welcomed war because it brought them exorbitant rates of interest on their loans. The modern tendency is to prevent war, if possible, because it is ruinously costly. Socialism is doing a great deal towards peace in England, France and Germany. The great trouble with established law is that it acts like a fish net—the big fish escape, while the small ones are caught."
